CHRISTMAS TOMORROW, and a week later the first day of 1929. What sort of year will it be for the world, for this country and for the individual?

Like a man half-heartedly swearing off in the morning, the world is trying to give up war. And this country, which never started a war against Europe, is expected to do most of the reforming. It's like asking Moody and Sankey to sign the pledge first, or entreating the Rev. Dr. Straton not to believe in Darwin.

The individual must solve his own problems, with the use of will power. "The heart knoweth his own bitterness." Each of us knows what is wrong with him, and what he ought to do. Few of us do it. Nations know what they ought to do. None of them does it. Europe ought to stop fighting, and can't. We ought to mind our own business, and can't.

For American prosperity the outlook is good. Prosperity demands action and the spending of money, lots of money. This present prosperity is based on the pouring out of a hundred billion in the war.

Herbert Hoover is coming in. He will get action and will spend money wisely. Business will boom.

The pessimists and the bears have days of sorrow ahead.

Great are the values that go to waste. When Spaniards brought bricks of silver down from the ancient Cerro De Pasco mine on Lamas, they tossed aside the copper taken out. It was not worth transportation. It's worth millions now.

In sugar mills the problem was to get rid of the "bagasse"—ground up cane, from which sugar had been taken. Now excellent building material is made of that waste stuff and Hawaiians are starting to make paper of it.

The greatest of all waste goes on inside the human brain, of which 999 thousandths remain idle and unused, even in well-managed brains. Millions of brains do not work at all, only remember and repeat, never create.

But that will change. Consider what ahts and other insects accomplish, having been here many million years ahead of us. We are only 12,000 years from the late Stone Age, which is the most encouraging fact in history. Give men 10 to 50 million more years with deepening convolutions and inherited knowledge and see what they will do.

A mud wasp, as Fabre shows, is born knowing how to perform a most delicate surgical operation, difficult for a skilled man. New born human babies, 50,000,000 years hence, will know more of mathematics than Newton knew when he died, more of music than Beethoven and Bach combined.

It is predicted that 2,000,000 will die in Kansu province this winter, about half the population. Famine and cold will kill a great number. Mohammedan fanatics, continuing their massacres for the glory of Allah, will kill the others.

Kansu is one thousand miles north of Shanghai, and one asked why so little is done for the miserable people of Kansu, Shanghai answers: "They are so far away."

Uncle Sam, convinced that his officials are not honest or able enough to succeed in business, is getting out of shipping as fast as he can.

That suits the British. They do not like competition with this Government and its long purse. But they are not at all afraid of our private shipping men. Of them their opinion is small.

Our ship owners had built up a good tourist trade with Cuba, based partly on America's prohibition thirst.

The Canard line decides to get that trade, and puts fine big steamers on a New York-Cuba winter run. The American Ward line cuts rates 25 per cent in revenge. But the British can run boats more cheaply than our people can, partly because of our legislation.

A hundred times you read this heading: "Thief snatches woman's purse."

Sometimes a small amount of money goes, sometimes all the lady's jewelry, very valuable.

Is there not room somewhere, even in modern dresses, for a pocket? The old idea of hanging a bag safely underneath the skirt no longer works; the skirt would not hide it. But somewhere between the knees and the lower ribs there should be pocket room.

Suppose men went about dangling their wealth from their wrists in little bags. How long would they keep it?

RESCUED IN LOVE LEAP

Vivian McLaren, 21, employe of a restaurant on Tremont st., attempted suicide today by jumping from the stone bridge on Agassiz rd. into Muddy river, Fenway. She was saved by a taxi driver and his passenger, but her spine was badly injured when she hit the ice, through which she partly broke. She lives at 67 Batavia st., and was on her way home when she decided to die. It is said she had quarreled with William White, a fellow-employe, who, she told the police, was her suitor.

NURSES SAVE 6 TOTS IN HOSPITAL FIRE

GIRL CRAWLS IN BURNING MALDEN BUILDING AND RESCUES TINY PATIENT

Six small children were rescued today by nurses who heroically braved fire and dense smoke in a one-story wooden wing of the Malden Hospital.

After they had carried out five of the children on a chicken stretcher and two on mattresses, which they dragged through the snow, they returned in search of a six-year-old girl out of the smoke-filled interior.

All of the children were seriously ill and one, Joseph Hardy of Malden, was under treatment for a fractured skull, inflicted by a car driven by a hit-and-run operator. They were carried by the nurses through the fire started when Miss Julia Walsh, a maid, was heating floor wax on a gas stove, in the sterilizing room of ward E, in the wing in which the children were housed.

The wax caught fire, the flames spread to the ceiling and the alarm was turned in.

NAMES OF TWELVE HUB COUNCILORS APPEAR ON $60,000 'BRIBE' LIST

The names of 12 members of Boston City Council appear on an alleged "bribe list" held by officials of the Boston National League, according to disclosures which cropped out today in the Sunday Sports scandal.

A councilor who claimed to be acting as "spokesman," for a group of colleagues demanded $60,000. The "ante" for himself and eleven members, he is alleged to have put it, was to be $5000 each.

He argued that it would take at least that sum to bring about ratification by the City Council of a measure which the voters of Boston and the Commonwealth adopted by a handsome majority at the polls on Nov. 6.

An official of one of the Boston ball parks is authority for this latest and sensational version of a sports and political tempest that has rocked New England and is interesting the sporting fraternity of the entire country.

The "gobetween" is reported to have furnished the names of councilors whose palms, he claimed, would have to be greased.

Amazed, the baseball magnate held a conference with associates and counsel and a quiet but searching investigation followed.

As the baseball officials suspected, many of the councilors whose

TRIES SUICIDE AFTER QUARREL WITH FIANCE

Despondent, following a quarrel with her sweetheart, Miss Vivian McLaren, 21, an employe in a cafe on Tremont st., attempted to end her life by leaping from the stone bridge across Muddy river, on Agassiz rd., in the Fenway, early today.

The girl, rescued by a taxicab driver and his passenger, is at the City Hospital, suffering from a possible fracture of the spine. Her name is on the danger list.

The Muddy river, several feet deep where it passes under the bridge, is covered with several inches of ice. From the stone coping of the bridge to the surface of the stream, is a distance of 25 feet, and the girl's body struck the ice with such force that her legs and the lower part of

DEATHS MAKE XMAS SAD IN THREE HOMES

Death today made this a sad Christmas for Julius Anderson of Charlestown and for the families of John J. Walsh of Shepard ave., Roxbury, and Mrs. Winifred Connolley of Chestnut st., Lynn.

Anderson, a seaman, came ashore from his ship to learn that his wife, Anna, had just died of a sudden illness, while their little boy, Andrew, had been frantically trying to find a doctor. Anderson collapsed at the news.

Walsh, a window washer, was instantly killed when he fell 40 stories to the street from a building on Kilby st. His wife had given birth to a baby a few hours previously.

Mrs. Connelley, 55, dropped dead on the sidewalk near her home as she left the house to go to Boston to do some Christmas shopping. She was the mother of Patrolman Frank Connolley of the Lynn police department. She is survived by three children.

GOODWIN TO APPEAR AT HEARING ON M'DONALD

A stormy session Wednesday of the Governor's Council over the confirmation of Herman A. MacDonald as Commissioner of Public Works seemed assured today.

H. M. Comerford, secretary and business representative of Engineers' Local Union No. 265, filed a formal protest with a request for a public hearing on charges that MacDonald knows nothing about bridge or road construction.

Scarcely had Comerford left the Governor's office when Frank A. Goodwin entered for the first time since he was Registrar of Motor Vehicles. He conferred with William L. Reed, secretary of the council, and was informed a hearing had been asked for.

Goodwin indicated he intended to appear and tell his reasons for characterizing the appointment as "disgraceful."

WILKINS' PILOT TELLS OF THRILLING FLIGHT IN ANTARCTIC

RISK LIVES IN GREAT TAKE-OFF

December 19 on our trip into unknown Antarctic.

The hardest problem was the building of a suitable landing field. We have planned to use the ice in the bay, but this year the ice went out a month earlier than it has ever before, but by the time our planes were sent up and tested, the ice was quite rotten. But we decided to take off from our little landing field to land on the ice and there put on the skis.

After rolling 1500 feet on the ice the plane broke through and it was only with the greatest difficulty that the plane was saved after the motor got a bath in the salt water.

Our next attempt was made with pontoons in the bay. We had little hope that the plane with pontoons could lift such a heavy load, but it was worth trying, as we had only one other dangerous chance.

Joe Crossan made three tremendous efforts to lift the plane off the water, running as far as four miles the last time, but it proved to be impossible. Our last chance was to lengthen our landing field as much as possible.

THRILLING TAKEOFF

Capt. Wilkins discovered a place where we could get a run of 3000 feet by filling in some ditches and carrying off thousands of rocks. The runway had a bend of 25 degrees in it and it was unique, the ground being volcanic. After a couple of weeks of hard work we had the field cleared.

I am sure that if Capt. Wilkins, Crossan, Portner or I ever get a position we shall go as hands experienced in making little rocks out of big ones. The 18th and 19th were both beautiful days, the first time we had seen two good days in succession since our arrival.

On the 19th, soon after 4 a. m., we took the plane into the air to test the engine and radio. Then we loaded in the 300 pounds of supplies and supplies and, by 8 o'clock were ready to take off.

Our takeoff was thrilling. The field was rough and hilly. It was a great credit to the sturdiness of the Lockheed airplane that it held together under the terrible strain.

The end of the runway ran out over the crest of a hill. We were still on the ground when we reached the top of the hill. So it may be said that we did not rise into the air but the ground dropped from under us.

OVER MOUNTAINS

When we got into the air I turned around and saw that Capt. Wilkins was jubilant as our work was half-finished and he had been hoping for years to have the chance to make the trip we were now starting.

Thanks to Orval Porter, the motor was tuned perfectly. Every engine dial stayed in its proper place the whole trip, as steady as though it were painted there.

Leaving Deception Island we took a due south course across Bransfield Straits. Some miles out we passed two small islands then we came to Graham Land. The mountains appear on the chart as from 2000 to 6000 feet high. To our surprise we found them between 8000 and 9000 feet high. We passed over them at an altitude of 8200 feet. The mountains are covered with a glacier of great depth.

We saw crevasses so large that a dozen Woolworth buildings could be dropped into them. The mountains here are even sharper than in Arctic Alaska and the whole country is standing on end. It was very thrilling to look down from our height upon the ice barrier and small mountains beyond. This desolate, forbidding giants' land struck me with awe and wonder.

NEW ISLANDS

After crossing Graham Land and during the next three hours we gradually cut our altitude from 8000 feet to 2000 feet. I got a steady stream of notes from Captain Wilkins, such as:

"Those are the Seal Islands."

I thought of the islands of similar name near San Francisco.

"The next island is Weather Island, and far to the southwest is where Sir Ernest Shackleton lost his boat. That is the first new island we have seen. What shall we name it?"

"Notice that channel running as far as we can see. Graham Land must be an island."

And soon, to the left, we saw new islands never before seen by man.

About 530 miles out we came to a big channel probably 20 miles across. As far as we could see it ran straight through Graham Land. From this point the sharp mountains cut off and there seemed to be a gradual upward slope to the vast Antarctic plateau.

Dowling Hurls Defi at 'Mayor's Gang' in Row

REPLYING to Vice-President Adams' accusation today, Councillor Frederic Dowling declared that Adams probably paid money, but it was paid to "Mayor Nichols' gang." The Councillor said:

"Probably Adams paid a price for certain action that was promised and now he is beefing because he didn't get the action that was promised.

"He probably paid some of the bunkers—some of the mayor's friends.

"If Adams has any complaint to make against me I invite him to take that complaint before the Grand Jury. If he has been blackjacked he ought to go after those who have blackjacked him.

"There has never been, at any time, any doubt, that the Sunday baseball bill would go through, but there is no reason why a psychopathic mayor should force us to do something that his gang has been paid for."

Police Guard Homes of Kidnap Jurors

Chicago, Dec. 24 (AP)—Fear of revenge by friends of two convicted kidnapers of Billy Ranieri today caused the police to post guards about the homes of the jurors that convicted the kidnapers.

The jury which convicted Angelo Peditti and Andrew Cappellano of the kidnaping and fixed their punishment at 25 years' imprisonment was escorted home under police protection. Other policemen guarded the homes of Frank Ranieri, father of the kidnaped boy.

HEROIC NURSES SAVE 6 IN FIRE

leaped to the wall and thick, black smoke from the blazing wax soon filled the ward.

The maid called to Miss Catherine MacMillan, the nurse in that ward, for help and the children, catching sight of the flames, began to scream.

Seeing that additional help would be required in short order to save the children, Miss MacMillan promptly telephoned to the office of the hospital and Miss Marion Jackson, the superintendent, responded with all the nurses she could round up.

DO HEROIC WORK

By the time these nurses arrived, the interior of ward E was a mass of black smoke, with flames licking along two of the walls and the flooring.

Miss MacMillan and Miss Welsh had started carrying out the children, after one desperate attempt to stem the flames, and the other nurses plunged into the smoke and carried out the others. Miss Zwisler making the last rescue when it was found that Claire Guild, 6, had been overlooked.

HOSE TOO SHORT.

Meanwhile the fire department was on its way to the top of Murray Hill, near the Medford line, where the institution is situated, and Charles Claflin, the hospital engineer, was laying hose to fight the fire himself. Claflin found his hose lines were too short to reach the wing.

Besides the Guild child those saved were Joseph Hardy, the hit-and-run victim, Lawrence Sullivan, Phyllis Fawcett, William Walters and Edith Ostran. All live in Malden.

Nurses Zwisler and MacMillan collapsed after the children were all taken out, and were put to bed suffering from smoke and shock.

GIRL TRIES TO DIE IN RIVER

her body went through the ice into the water.

The girl lives at 67 Batavia st., Back Bay, and was on her way home from work when she decided to take her own life.

Several hours before, the girl had quarreled at her place of employment, with William White, who, she told the police, was her sweetheart.

No one saw the girl leap from the bridge, but her screams, after she struck the ice, were heard by George Brown of Cambridge st., Allston, a taxicab driver, and his passenger, Samuel Hablow, of Central ave., Revere.

The men risked their lives, crawling out on the cracking ice. They managed to reach the girl and to pull her ashore. She was placed in the taxicab and taken to Police Station 16, on Boylston st.

Meanwhile, residents in the neighborhood who heard the girl's screams, notified the police. Lieut. Stephen J. Gillis dispatched a patrol wagon filled with officers, to the Fenway, and for half an hour they searched about. At the station Lieut Gillis had ordered the girl taken to the City Hospital.

The girl's name was immediately placed on the danger list. While physicians believe her spine is fractured, it will require X-ray photograph to determine the extent of her injuries.

Held Without Bail in Slaying at Amherst

Charles Maculis, a waiter at Massachusetts Agricultural College, arrested in Boston, was arraigned today in Northampton court charged with first degree murder in the fatal stabbing of George Crepulis at the college December 16.

Maculis pleaded not guilty and was held without bail for a hearing on January 3.

NAME 12 IN BRIBERY SCANDAL

names names appeared on the list were entirely innocent and ignorant of the overtures which have kicked up such a fuss.

But the attitude of a smaller group is reported to have convinced the baseball officials there was something to the attempted "hold-up."

WAIT UNUTIL PROPER TIME.

Local captains of professional baseball claim to have ample evidence to submit to Suffolk Grand Jury, but whether they would go that far was doubtful today.

Charles F. Adas, vice-president of the Braves, whose statement issued Saturday night made the first direct charge against the City Council, declined today to amplify his accusations.

"I shall not make any more statements until the proper time and place," said Mr. Adams, with a fighting expression and in a tone that spoke volumes.

His laconic utterance seemed to indicate more than anything else that if crowded he and his associates were prepared to go the limit.

Asked if the "proper time and place" meant the grand jury Mr. Adams said he did not care to discuss the matter any further at this juncture.

FOLEY READY TO ACT

Dist. Atty William J. Foley said: "My office is open from 9 until 5. I have not yet had any complaint from any of the baseball people."

Vice-President Adams' charge resulted in a demand for divers probes. Mayor Nichols felt that the entire matter should be sifted. Councillors whose names had been bandied without their knowledge or consent insisted on the most searching kind of an inquiry and there were the rumblings of possible Grand Jury action.

The scandal cauldron sure did sizzle on the eve of Yuletide.

And the popular theory at City Hall today was, "Where there is so much smoke there must be fire."

EVIDENCE IN WRITING.

In addition to the list of names, a certain baseball official was reported today to hold damaging evidence in writing. Among this type of evidence is said to be a letter written by a councillor demanding money in sure and subtle manner that a reply sent as "bait" was never answered.

The plan and desire of the baseball managers from the outset has been to proceed with extreme caution in justice to the majority of the members of the City Council who are thought by them to be above suspision or reproach and to try out the few suspected.

TALK OF BLACKJACK

One of the officials said today:

"We were confident that this matter would simmer down to few individuals who probably acted on their own initiative and we were inclined to say little if anything about it until certain persons began to talk about being "blackjacked." That convinced us that the time had arrived to let the public know that the blackjack was held by other hands.

"We have kept close tabs on certain councillors and their actions have been consistent with our original suspicions.

"We do not wish to injure any innocent person but will follow the slightest suspicion their way, but we do feel that the voters who voted for Sunday sports ought to know something of what was going on behind the scenes.

COUNCILORS WRATHY

Councillors are "hot under the collar" today about the whole affair. Some of them expressed themselves in no uncertain terms. Councillor Frederic E. Dowling of Brighton paid his respects to Mayor Nichols and Vice-President Adams of the Braves. He referred to Nichols as "the psychopathic mayor."

One of the outstanding features of the storm today was the possible effect Vice-President Adams' charge would have on the Sunday sports order at the regular meeting of the city council Thursday afternoon.

Some thought it would widen the breach and made ratification more doubtful, but that Sunday sports would be approved by the council eventually was admitted by all.

Lawrence Ratifies Sunday Sport Bill

Lawrence, Dec. 24—Unanimously, and without comment, Lawrence city council today ratified the professional Sunday sports bill, over which there is a battle now raging in Boston.

Ratification came a few minutes after first presentation of the order for acceptance.

GET $1200 AT BRIDGE GAME

Philadelphia, Dec. 24 (AP)—Youths laughing and joking behind their masks, late tonight interrupted a bridge game at the home of Mrs. Lena Rosenblatt, held up four players and escaped with jewelry and money amounting to about $1200.

The youths pushed into the house when Mrs. Rosenblatt answered an insistent ringing of the doorbell.

"Hello, lady," laughed the leader, drawing a pistol. "Don't scream and hand over that wrist watch." Now go ahead and introduce us to your friends."

JUDGE AWARDS SMALL FINES AND WARNING

Of eight women shoplifters before Chief Justice Bolster in municipal court today, six were mothers who stole toys or clothing for their children, police testified. Judge Bolster discharged the defendants with small fines and a warning.

Two "psychopathic shoplifters" from Lincoln, Me., drew heavier penalties.

They gave their names a Gladys Mott and Blanche Newman. Their lawyers told the court that "the big town stores hypnotized them." "They are not thieves," he said. "They are victims of a psychopathic weakness."

"A slight jar to the pocketbook nerve might effect a cure," Judge Bolster suggested.

He fined each woman $15.

CHICAGO 'GOLD COAST CLUB' RAIDED

Chicago, Dec. 24 (AP)—They thought it was another of those "different" acts staged by the management of the Club Algiers.

But it was only a dry raid, and old not for the raiders; new for the Club Algiers, exclusive rendezvous for residents of the Chicago Gold Coast.

"Oh, I say," expostulated one man as an axe hewed a hole in the wall close to his head.

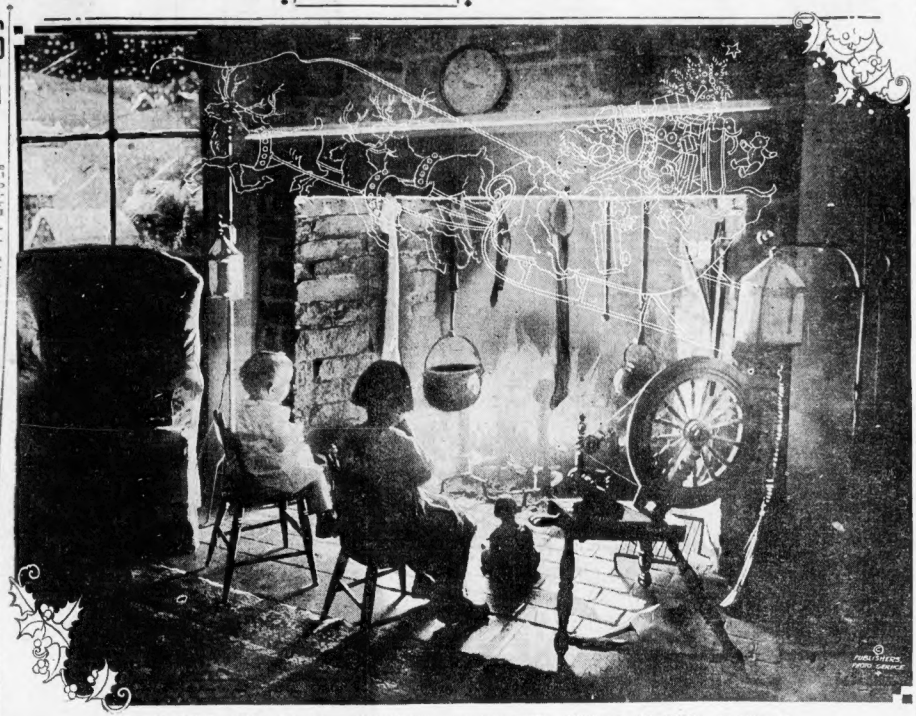
Finally a man crawled through and doffed his silk hat.

"Pardon me," he said, "this is a raid. I'll have to come in this way." And he did. So did others, similarly garbed in evening dress.

Even then the fashionably-gowned, bejewelled women patrons weren't sure. But as one of the sophisticated young strangers made a grab for a flask uncertainty turned to positiveness.

Another flask, propelled by someone's foot, went skidding across the floor. So did others.

A man who said he was a banker found them piled under his table. They didn't belong to him, he protested, because he had just disposed of his.



WIDE-EYED, WATCHFUL, CHILDREN AWAIT THE COMING OF KRIS KRINGLE

"Tis the night before Christmas, and all through the house, hardly a creature is stirring, and the children, eagerly hopeful, hearts throbbing, eyes opened wide, ears expectant, listen for the jingle-bells and the rustle that Santa might make in the chimney. The Publishers Photo Service picture portrays the familiar scene. 'Tis the big night of the year—as all the children are thinking this Christmas Eve, "Tonight," "Tonight's the Night!"

J.W. REARDON IN REVIEW OF 25-YEAR PROGRESS

The place of the Boston Evening American in the business life of New England was depicted today by James W. Reardon, associate editor, in an address to the advertising staff.

Expending three-quarters of a million dollars every month in the conduct of its business, having a weekly payroll of $65,000 and employing 1400 persons, the Boston Evening American is one of the biggest business establishments in Boston and New England, Mr. Reardon pointed out.

From his personal knowledge of events—for he was city editor when the presses first began to rumble, March 21, 1904—Mr. Reardon traced the development of this enterprise, saying:

"A little less than 25 years ago the Honorable John L. Bates, then Governor of Massachusetts, pressed a button which started the presses for the first edition of the Boston American, saying as he did it, 'It is a pleasure to note the enterprise that adds another to the progressive journals of the Commonwealth. I trust that success may attend it and that the first issue may be the beginning of a long career of usefulness in the enlightening of the public and the moulding of public opinion for the best interests of the people.'

Sounds Keynote

"Here then is the keynote struck on the day of the American's first publication. And so we are here today at this Christmas season, 25 of which have been passed in this location, and we give to the people of New England and to the friends of the American, and to its employes the best wishes of the Christmas season and everything that should go with them.

"In carrying out its mission as directed by Mr. Hearst, the American, since that first day, has always been forward looking and forwarding in the interests of the people and the Commonwealth it served.

"If we never did anything else but secure for Boston lower priced gas after a continued agitation for some months, that would, I believe, be a lasting monument to the institution we serve and a sufficient guaranties that the newspaper was true to its real purpose.

"In this campaign for lower prices for gas for Boston a monster petition signed by 50,000 readers of the Boston American was presented to the Legislature and played a big part in securing the reduction sought.

"Two of the things that the American early wished for were the Cambridge and the Dorchester tunnels, which now give service to our people every day in the year.

Aids to Workers

"The Workmen's Compensation Act, campaigned for by us, was another great piece of legislation whose value I do not have to now say more than mention. Some of the great social movements we have engaged in, and I have not time to go into many of them, is the creation of the big municipal Christmas tree on the common which has been continued from year to year by the city. For another, is our use of our columns to help at the Christmas season those who are in need. This has always been a big feature of this season.

"During the war after we had gotten into it, the American was in the forefront in advocacy of public purchase of Liberty bonds, and the bankers' committee which had the sale of these in charge in New England give us credit for a large share of the public work which carried these loans to success in New England.

"Few days pass as we enter the American building that we do not look at the bronze tablet on the wall, there inscribed with the names of 100 or more employes of the American who went to the front and some of whom paid the tribute of the last sacrifice for 'Old Glory.'

"That tablet is indeed an honorable record, and those living ones whose names are there inscribed should feel a thrill of pride because of this well-deserved tribute paid them. Their patriotism and that of all our employes, down to the humblest, was of the highest service.

"And now we come down to what Mr. Hearst, through the American, has done for Boston in a newspaper way and purely affecting the newspaper business. Compare the situation 25 years ago and now. Perhaps only two newspapers at that time were profitable. One newspaper was wondering where it would get the money to pay the interest on its bonds, and another was staggering glass-eyed in its corner waiting for the last blow to lay it flat.

Helps Others Gain

"Look at the situation now, all the opposition newspapers are going concerns and some of them have substituted loss for very large annual profits this in spite of the fact that when it was reported in Boston that Mr. Hearst was to start a newspaper here, many of them viewed the prospect with alarm. I believe that in every city in which Mr. Hearst has operated he has helped the business.

"Let us give a few figures on the makeup of the American establishment. We have 1400 employes including newsboys. We have a payroll of $65,000 weekly, paid by check through Boston banks. Every month we spend three-quarters of a million dollars in the conduct of our business.

"Our average weekly wage is higher than all but a few Boston business institutions and there are not many establishments which give

Washington, Dec. 24 (INS)—Twenty-six stockings will hang at the Robey fireside, out near Anacostia, tonight. Eigh pairs represent four sets of twins.

For the brawer C. Robeys have had four pairs of twins in the last seven years, and in their 22 years of married life they have brought 35 children into the world, one of whom died and one has married.

MARY GARDEN SCORNS LOVE IN HER BOOK

Chicago, Dec. 24 (AP)—The life of Mary Garden is going to be an open book.

But not quite yet. Her memoirs will not be published while a few persons who will be mentioned (the book already is started) are still living, said the titian-haired grand opera singer. She returned yesterday from her villa at Beaulieu, France.

She has completed several chapters of her memoirs and the whole book is going to be "very frank."

No Isadora Duncan revelation as for love affairs, however. Mary scorns love interest.

"Love, pouf! I am not so very interested in love. There are so many other thrilling things in the world. Truly, I have not had so many love affairs, well, perhaps one or two. Mais oui, I shall write of them in my book."

She will make first appearance in opera here this season in "Sapho" January 2.

Lenient Judge Frees N. H. Man for Xmas

Through theh leniency of Judge Arthur P. Hone of East Cambridge district court and kindness of Police Capt. Timothy F. Leahy, Bernard Geary will spend Christmas at his home at Henniker, N. H., instead of in jail.

Arraigned today on a charge of drunkenness, Geary explained he had come from New Hampshire to see his sisters, and had anticipated the celebration. Judge Stone agreed to let him depart on condition that Capt. Leahy furnish a police escort to the train and this was done.

N.Y. ROUNDS UP 250 CROOKS

New York, Dec. 24 (INS)—Rounded up in one of the greatest cleanups by detectives in years, 250 gunmen, murder suspects, forgers, narcotic vendors, thieves and beggars were being finger-printed and questioned in various station houses throughout the city early today.

All underworld characters found loitering on the streets after midnight were taken into custody. The narcotic vendors were apprehended as a result of the statement of Grover Whalen, new police commissioner, that the department had been lax in investigating the two drug rings now being probed.

British Author Dies

London, Dec. 24 (INS)—Stacy Aumonier, author, whose short stories are well known in America, died today aged 41. He began his career as an artist but turned to writing in 1912.

POLICE PRAISE SLAYER OF 2 IN HOLDUP

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—Peter Cardone, a Brooklyn manufacturing chemist, who is also an expert pistol shot, was the recipient of hundreds of congratulatory messages today for killing two of four armed men who attempted to hold up a poker game early Sunday in the home of a friend.

Cardone, who was shot through the arm during a gun battle in which 14 shots were exchanged, was more concerned than elated, however, because two innocent bystanders were also killed.

Police Commissioner Whalen personally congratulated Cardone, saying the city needed more men with courage and marksmanship to shoot when assailed by thugs.

Ten men were engrossed in the poker game at the home of Fred Rendino, Brooklyn, when four armed men appeared and ordered hands up.

One of the intruders kicked Cardone on the shin when he failed to obey and that angered him. Cardone, who held a police permit to carry a revolver, drew his weapon and began firing.

Two of the bandits, identifeld later as Pasquale Belmonte and Emanuel Frasca, were dropped by Carbone's unerring aim, shot through the forehead. Meanwhile Rocco Massia, a chauffeur, an onlooker, was killed by a shot from one of the robbers, and Nicholas Sulzone, one of the players, was killed when he jumped from a window.

The other two hold-up men fled.

Be Good Fellow

LAUD COOLIDGE 'NAVY SENSE'

Paris, Dec. 24 (AP)—President Coolidge's argument for a strong national defence was quoted by Minister of War Painleve in the Senate today as "good sense," in justifying what opponents assailed as a contradiction between the Kellogg-Briand treaty and an increased war budget.

"The allusion has been made," said M. Painleve, "to the peace pact, contrasting it with military expense. The originator of this pact, President Coolidge himself, wrote that countries that seriously organize their defence, co-operate best in guaranteeing peace and that the catastrophe of 1914 would have occurrtd earlier if menaced countries had not protected themselves. We will remain true to those words of good sense."

Mother of 7 Vanishes; 'Forever,' Says Note

It doesn't look like a very merry Christmas for seven-year-old Charlie Sacco of Floyd st., Revere, nor for Charlie's four brothers—nor for Charlie's dad, John Sacco.

Mrs. Angelina Sacco, Charlie's mother, left her home before daylight today. It's "forever," according to note which she left. She's "all done," she wrote, with her husband and family and the trouble and work they have caused her.

Mrs. Sacco took with her two of her children, John, jr., eight, and Angelina, 12.

Charlie, with the quintet's last nickel, telephoned to the police station to Patrolman Philip Gallo, who came "a-hustling." Charlie solved out the story. With a crisp new dollar bill clutched in his fingers, Charlie was taken to the warm kitchen of neighbors, friends of his dad. The other boys came, too. Two of them are old enough to hunt fr jbs after the holiday.

John Sacco, thef ather, was not at home today. He won't hear the bad news until he returns.

WILKINS' PILOT TELLS OF THRILLING FLIGHT IN ANTARCTIC

December 19 on our trip into unknown Antarctic.

The hardest problem was the building of a suitable landing field. We have planned to use the ice in the bay, but this year the ice went out a month earlier than it has ever before, but by the time our planes were sent up and tested, the ice was quite rotten. But we decided to take off from our little landing field to land on the ice and there put on the skis.

After rolling 1500 feet on the ice the plane broke through and it was only with the greatest difficulty that the plane was saved after the motor got a bath in the salt water.

Our next attempt was made with pontoons in the bay. We had little hope that the plane with pontoons could lift such a heavy load, but it was worth trying, as we had only one other dangerous chance.

Joe Croosan made three tremendous efforts to lift the plane off the water, running as far as four miles the last time, but it proved to be impossible. Our last chance was to lengthen our landing field as much as possible.

THRILLING TAKEOFF

Capt. Wilkins discovered a place where we could get a run of 3000 feet by filling in some ditches and carrying off thousands of rocks. The runway had a bend of 25 degrees in it and it was unique, the ground being volcanic. After a couple of weeks of hard work we had the field cleared.

I am sure that if Capt. Wilkins, Croosan, Porter or I ever get a position we shall go as hands experienced in making little rocks out of big ones. The 18th and 19th were both beautiful days, the first time we had seen two good days in succession since our arrival.

On the 19th, soon after 4 a. m., we took the plane into the air to test the engine and radio. Then we loaded in the 300 pounds of gasoline and supplies and, by 8 o'clock were ready to take off.

Our takeoff was thrilling. The field was rough and hilly. It was a great credit to the sturdiness of the Lockheed airplane that it held together under the terrible strain.

The end of the runway ran out over the crest of a hill. We were still on the ground when we reached the top of the hill. So it may be said that we did not rise into the air but the ground dropped from under us.

OVER MOUNTAINS

When we got into the air I turned around and saw that Capt. Wilkins was jubilant as our work was by f-inish- and he had been hoping for years to have the chance to make the trip we were now starting.

Thanks to Orval Porter, the motor was tuned perfectly. Every engine dial stayed in its proper place the whole trip, as steady as though it were painted there.

Leaving Deception Island we took a due south course across Bransfield Straits. Some miles out we passed two small islands then we came to Graham Land. The mountains appear on the chart as from 2000 to 6000 feet high. To our surprise we found them between 8000 and 9000 feet high. We passed over them at an altitude of 8200 feet. The mountains are covered with a glacier of great depth.

We saw crevasses so large that a dozen Woolworth buildings could be dropped into them. The mountains here are even sharper than in Arctic Alaska and the whole country is standing on end. It was very thrilling to look down from our height upon the ice barrier and small mountains beyond. This desolate, forbidding giants' land struck me with awe and wonder.

NEW ISLANDS

After crossing Graham Land and during the next three hours we gradually cut our altitude from 8000 feet to 2000 feet. I got a steady stream of notes from Captain Wilkins, such as:

"Those are the Seal Islands."

I thought of the islands of similar name near San Francisco.

"The next island is Weather Island, and far to the southwest is where Sir Ernest Shackleton lost his boat. That is the first new island we have seen. What shall we name it?"

"Notice that channel running as far as we can see. Graham Land must be an island."

And soon, to the left, we saw new islands never before seen by man.

About 530 miles out we came to a big channel probably 20 miles across. As far as we could see it ran straight through Graham Land. From this point the sharp mountains cut off and there seemed to be a gradual upward slope to the vast Antarctic plateau.

Dowling Hurls Defi at 'Mayor's Gang' in Row

REPLYING to Vice-President Adams' accusation today, Councillor Frederic Dowling declared that Adams probably paid money, but it was paid to "Mayor Nichols' gang." The Councillor said:

"Probably Adams paid a price for certain action that was promised and now he is beefing because he didn't get the action that was promised.

"He probably paid some of the bunkers—some of the mayor's friends.

"If Adams has any complaint to make against me I invite him to take that complaint before the Grand Jury. If he has been blackjacked he ought to go after those who have blackjacked him.

"There has never been, at any time, any doubt, that the Sunday baseball bill would go through, but there is no reason why a psychopathic mayor should force us to do something that his gang has been paid for."

Police Guard Homes of Kidnap Jurors

Chicago, Dec. 24 (AP)—Fear of revenge by friends of two convicted kidnapers of Billy Hanlon today caused the police to post guards about the homes of the jurors that convicted the kidnapers.

The jury which convicted Angelo Peiitti and Andrew Cappelano of the kidnaping and fixed their punishment at 25 years' imprisonment was escorted home under police protection. Other policemen guarded the homes of Frank Hanlon, father of the kidnaped boy.

leaped to the wall and thick, black smoke from the blazing wax soon filled the ward.

The maid called to Miss Catherine MacMillan, the nurse in that ward, for help and the children, catching sight of the flames, began to scream.

Seeing that additional help would be required in short order to save the children, Miss MacMillan promptly telephoned to the office of the hospital and Miss Marion Jackson, the superintendent, responded with all the nurses she could round up.

DO HEROIC WORK

By the time these nurses arrived, the interior of ward E was a mass of black smoke, with flames licking along two of the walls and the flooring.

Miss MacMillan and Miss Welsh had started carrying out the children, after one desperate attempt to stem the flames, and the other nurses plunged into the smoke and carried out the others. Miss Zwisler making the last rescue when it was found that Claire Guild, 6, had been overlooked.

HOSE TOO SHORT.

Meanwhile the fire department was on its way to the top of Murray Hill, near the Medford line, where the institution is situated, and Charles Claflin, the hospital engineer, was laying hose to fight the fire himself. Claflin found its hose lines were too short to reach the wing.

Besides the Guild child those saved were Joseph Hardy, the hit-and-run victim; Lawrence Sullivan, Phyllis Fawcett, William Walters and Edith Ostran. All live in Malden.

Nurses Zwisler and MacMillan collapsed after the children were all taken out, and were put to bed suffering from smoke and shock.

GIRL TRIES TO DIE IN RIVER

her body went through the ice into the water.

The girl lives at 67 Batavia st., Back Bay, and was on her way home from work when she decided to take her own life.

Several hours before, the girl had quarreled at her place of employment, with William White, who, she told the police, was her sweetheart.

No one saw the girl leap from the bridge, but her screams, after she struck the ice, were heard by George Brown of Cambridge st., Allston, a taxicab driver, and his passenger, Samuel Hablow, of Central ave., Revere.

The men risked their lives, crawling out on the cracking ice. They managed to reach the girl and to pull her ashore. She was placed in the taxicab and taken to Police Station 16, on Boylston st.

Meanwhile, residents in the neighborhood who heard the girl's screams, notified the police. Lieut. Stephen J. Gillis dispatched a patrol wagon filled with officers, to the Fenway, and for half an hour they searched about. At the station Lieut Gillis had ordered the girl taken to the City Hospital.

The girl's name was immediately placed on the danger list. While physicians believe her spine is fractured, it will require X-ray photographs to determine the extent of her injuries.

Held Without Bail in Slaying at Amherst

Macullo pleaded not guilty and was held without bail for a hearing on January 3.

NAME 12 IN BRIBERY SCANDAL

names names appeared on the list were entirely innocent and ignorant of the overtures which have kicked up such a fuss.

But the attitude of a smaller group is reported to have convinced the baseball officials there was something to the attempted "hold-up."

WAIT UNTIL PROPER TIME.

Local captains of professional baseball claim to have ample evidence to submit to Suffolk Grand Jury, but whether they would go that far was doubtful today.

Charles F. Adas, vice-president of the Braves, whose statement issued Saturday night made the first direct charge against the City Council, declined today to amplify his accusations.

"I shall not make any more statements until the proper time and place," said Mr. Adams, with a fighting expression and in a tone that spoke volumes.

His laconic utterance seemed to indicate more than anything else that if crowded he and his associates were prepared to go the limit.

Asked if the "proper time and place" meant the grand jury Mr. Adams said he did not care to discuss the matter any further at this juncture.

FOLEY READY TO ACT

Dist. Atty William J. Foley said: "My office is open from 9 until 5. I have not yet had any complaint from any of the baseball people."

Vice-President Adams' charge resulted in a demand for divers probes. Mayor Nichols felt that the entire matter should be sifted. Councillors whose names had been bandied without their knowledge or consent insisted on the most searching kind of an inquiry and there were the rumblings of possible Grand Jury action.

The scandal cauldron sure did sizzle on the eve of Yuletide.

And the popular theory at City Hall today was, "Where there is so much smoke there must be fire."

EVIDENCE IN WRITING.

In addition to the list of names, a certain baseball official was reported today to hold damaging evidence in writing. Among this type of evidence is said to be a letter written by a councillor demanding money in sucr a subtle manner that a reply sent as "bait" was never answered.

The plan and desire of the baseball managers from the outset has been to proceed with extreme caution in justice to the majority of the members of the City Council who are thought by them to be above suspicion or reproach and to try out the few suspected.

TALK OF BLACKJACK

One of the officials said today:

"We were confident that this matter would simmer down to the individuals who probably acted on their own initiative and we were inclined to say little if anything about it until certain persons began to talk about being "blackjacked." That convinced us that the time had arrived to let the public know that the blackjack was held by other hands.

"We have kept close tabs on certain councillors and their actions have been consistent with our original suspicions.

"We do not wish to injure any innocent persons nor throw the slightest suspicion their way, but we feel that the voters who voted for Sunday sports ought to know something of what was going on behind the scenes."

COUNCILLORS WRATHY ..

Councillors are "hot under the collar" today about the whole affair. Some of them were more pronounced in no uncertain terms. Councillor Frederic E. Tewling of Brighton called the murder charge "rot" and Vice-President Adams of the Braves. He referred to Nichols as "the broomcorn magnate."

One of the outstanding features of the storm today was the possible effect Vice-President Adams' charge would have on the Sunday sports order at the regular meeting of the city council Thursday afternoon.

Some thought it widened the breach and made ratification more doubtful, but that Sunday sports would be approved by the council eventually was admitted by all.

Ratification came a few minutes after first presentation of the order for acceptance.

GET $1200 AT BRIDGE GAME

Philadelphia, Dec. 24 (AP)—Youths laughing and joking behind their masks, late tonight interrupted a bridge game at the home of Mrs. Lena Rosenblatt, held up four players and escaped with jewelry and money amounting to about $1200.

The youths pushed into the house when Mrs. Rosenblatt answered an insistent ringing of the doorbell.

"Hello, lady," laughed the leader, drawing a pistol. "Don't scream and hand over that wrist watch." Now go ahead and introduce us to your friends."

women were rescued by three Lexington men, Walter Rose, Irving Currier and Carl Jones before the blaze got under way.

The women were taken to the office of Dr. James J. Walsh, nearby, and he ordered the casualties taken to the Symmes Arlington Hospital. Crovo, who was riding with Thompson, was out on the nose. The fire department was called and extinguished the flames in the wrecked automobiles.

The second crash took place on Bedford st., North Lexington, when the machine operated by Miss Frost struck a pole. Her brother, Earl, sustained a fractured hip and was sent to the Symmes Arlington Hospital.

$75,000,000 IN WALL ST. BONUSES

New York, Dec. 24 (INS)—Approximately $75,000,000 in holiday bonuses clinked in the Christmas stockings of financial district employes today.

Stenographer, clerk and Wall Street runner, for the most part, shared the golden stream, indulged in a noon-hour revel of Christmas purchasing, but kept most of the $75,000,000 largess right in the "sock."

From all points along the money canyon came reports that employes were investing their bonuses, either in stock of the corporations for which they work or in savings banks for a rainy day.

"The boys and girls in Wall Street are not loose spenders any more," said an official of Hornblower & Weeks, brokers, who distributed more than a million dollars.

"They have learned to save like the rest of the nation. Most of our employes have placed their bonuses in our employes savings account, where they draw interest."

Other Wall Street houses made similar statements. "I believe the vast majority of those receiving Christmas bonus money will invest it," said J. S. Bache, head of the international banking and brokerage house.

We Live Again Tonight, Children Once Again

"Make me a boy again just for tonight."

"Sob stuff," that, but this is a day when only a sob is eloquent. Indeed, there's the bare hint of a sob strangling at the throat of all humanity, a joyous sort of sob for the boy who was, a poignant sob for the boy who never again will be. Tonight will be Christmas Eve.

Childhood's night when drama and mystery grip the young imagination and leave it tingling over the greatest adventure a child can know. The man today is the boy who was, and though the years between have been long, he remembers the Christmas Eves he knew as a boy and if he chokes a bit over the memory, it is only that the child in all of us never really dies.

"Make me a boy again just for tonight." The poet who penned that immortal line was only echoing the though that comes unbidden to the door of our minds at such a time as this.

This undoubtedly would be a better world if it were a child's world always. It is a child's world for this day employment to a greater number of persons. This newspaper you serve is a big business part of the commercial life of New England.

TELLS BOSTON AMERICANS AID TO N. E.

"Let us see what Mr. Hearst has done for salaries in the newspaper business since the establishment of the American. I frequently say that every newspaper man should daily get down on his marrow bones and utter a prayer of thanks for Mr. Hearst's coming to Boston.

"When he came here very few persons in the editorial room were paid over $35 or $40 a week, and reporters were paid as low as $12 and $15, and I know of one case of a man who was paid $8 a week as a reporter who some years later left us at $75 a week to get more with another newspaper.

"Advertising solicitors rarely received over $25 a week and a good many were paid less by some of the papers that were struggling to make both ends meet. Our higher salaries compelled other newspapers to meet them and thus newspaper employes in every department were benefited.

"Now that we are in the 25-year period, I would like to tell you something that most of you do not know and few consider, and that is the large number of long-service men in the employ of the Boston Evening American.

Long Service Men

"Speaking for the editorial room, every good man who began with us or who came to us within the last 20 years, is with us still, if he wanted to be. Many have left us after training here to go elsewhere for the bigger money. Do you know that there are 74 employes here who have been with the Boston Evening American for 20-25 years and 27 of these for the full 25 years?

"Do you know that 144 employes have been with us 15 to 20 years.

"If we disregard the newsboys, who are constantly changing because of age, we have practically, 20 per cent of our employes of long service. This is a fine record when you understand that in the editorial room and in the advertising departments there are frequent changes accompanied of greater inducements elsewhere luring our men away. This is true of nearly all newspapers.

"Do you know that in the composing room there are 46 employes with 15 years or more of service, that there are 42 more in the pressroom who have been with us 15 years or more? There are 11 in the stereotyping department who have been there for 20 to 25 years. In the delivery department 18 have been with us from 20 to 25 years and 17 from 10 to 20 years.

"In the mailing department 12 have been with us from 20-25 years, and three from 10-20 years. The circulation department shows four men who have been here 20-25 years, or 10 in all from 10-25 years.

"Seven Canada points have been with us from 15-23 years, and in the Accounting department eight have been from 15-25 years and one for the 25-year full period.

"The building service has two men who have been with us for 25 years. And now let us get around to the editorial and advertising department, where as I said before the shifts are greatest for the reasons which I have already explained.

Great Opportunities

"In the advertising department there are two men who have been with us 20 to 25 years, three men from 15 to 20 years and five men ten to fifteen years.

In the editorial department there are twelve men who have been with us 20 to 25 years, 13 from 15 to 20 and 15 from ten to fifteen years.

"In the executive department six have been with us 20 to 25 and two from 15 to 20 years.

"That record speaks for itself, showing, as it does, that long and faithful service is given as a return for wise and liberal treatment.

"There are great opportunities in the Hearst service for every young man and woman here. And managing editors have been appointed from our staff to other Hearst newspapers within a year and there are publishers and advertising managers in others of our offices who sat beside us as subordinates only a few years ago.

"But these good things are not to be secured by wishing for them. You must work for them and work for them hard. Loyalty you have — there is nothing more outstanding in the newspaper service of the land than loyalty—and so combine this with hard work and you'll win. Help along your service and don't be that newest kind of a psychological discovery, an 'unconscious malcontent.'

"Remember one of Mr. Hearst's favorite sayings, 'I know we have our faults, but other people have them too!'

"That should quiet grumblers in the forecastle. Tell us and we will try to correct our shortcomings."

fellow Editor that she had spent the most touching and yet joyous night last Saturday than any she has lived in years.

She took a letter of appeal for aid two weeks ago and on Saturday she visited the home out of which the appeal had been sent to the Goodfellow Editor.

The six children in the family were seated with their discouraged mother and their sick father at "supper."

The "supper" consisted of stale bread and water. All the children were barefooted and what dresses they had on were thin and ragged.

After the Needham woman had completed a whirlwind shopping tour, this family was richer by a barrel of potatoes, $40 worth of groceries; a big turkey for tomorrow's dinner, six suits of underwear for each of the children and shoes and stockings for each child.

And the Needham woman had spent just above $100, and intends to spend more.

Non-Christian Japs in Tokio Celebrate Santa Claus Day

Tokyo, Dec. 24 (AP)—This non-Christian capital is celebrating christendom's great fete this year to an unprecedented extent. This is due partly to the fact that Dec. 25 will be observed by the nation as the anniversary of the death in 1926 of Emperor Yoshihito, and also because the Japanese have adopted the Occidental day as an occasion for gift giving.

"The words "Christmas" and "Santa Claus" have become common in Japanese speech and Tokyo department stores announce Christmas sales.

HUNT FIREBUG IN BLAZE AT REVERE

Police blamed incendiaries for firing a three-story brick dwelling in Cummins ave., Revere, near the Everett line. The building was destroyed with a loss of $10,000.

Although three families live in the building, the structure was unoccupied at the time the fire was discovered by a passing autoist.

A down kerosene torches, made by wrapping cotton batting around sticks, were found by firemen in the first floor of the burning building, while a bucket of kerosene and alcohol soaked rags were also discovered.

The fire threatened to spread and Chief Thomas J. McCarrick of the fire department sounded the second alarm on his arrival, calling out all Revere apparatus and assistance from Chelsea.

Before the fire apparatus left the scene State Inspector Edward F. Harrigan began an investigation.

LOWELL DOCTOR FOUND DEAD IN SAND BANK

Lowell, Dec. 24—The body of Dr. Terrence T. Kinlin, 50, of 43 Bartlett st., at one time one of the foremost medical practitioners of this city, was found today on a sandbank in the rear of Robinson's foundry, near Plain st.

Dr. Kinlin, who was a patient at the Chelmsford st. hospital, wandered away early in the morning, and is believed to have dropped exhausted to the sand bank. The body was identified by Supt. Dominick F. Molloy, who said he believed death was due to cold and exhaustion.

YULETIDE SPIRIT FILLS HEARTS OF SMART SET—BETTY ALDEN

HOLLY AND MISTLETOE and candles. Tonight is Christmas Eve, the time of candlelight, when a thousand tapers flicker their radiant Christmas cheer to the falling dusk. The evening when stockings hang high on chimney places and small hearts are thrilled at the coming of the Good Saint Nicholas. And all over the town's Belgravia that pleasant custom holds forth of "Open House" for the exchange of friendly good wishes. And in countless well-appointed kitchens preparation of the feast of Christmas is in progress, with a wealth of appetizing odors filling the air in oldtime New England fashion.

FOR ONE OF THE LARGEST family reunions tomorrow, that of the Robert Treat Paine connection, the proverbial "bird" set forth for consumption runs far into the plural, since those who sit down to this feast number more than half a hundred. Not one but many aristocrats of the barnyard will sizzle in well-browned state before the several generations of guests who annually gather in the Paine mansion that tops the crest of the "Hill." This family gathering has become an institution hereabouts and no one from tiny toddler to patriarch willingly absents himself from the company and the feast.

OUT IN THE SHERMAN WHIPPLE home in Clyde st., Brookline, Christmas observance means much more than the universal lighted tree and stocking hanging. Mrs. Russel T. Fry, born Whipple, has a way of concocting amusing playlets of the intimate drawing room sort designed to lead the Still Very Young generation along the paths of Thespis. And for a troupe of child actors right with in the Whipple-Fry-Withington family circle Mrs. Fry writes a charming "Christmas Dream," coaches the youngsters in their parts and stages it in her own drawing room as part of the holiday celebration.

BEFORE A LARGE AND most friendly audience, one bound to be spontaneously and enthusiastically appreciative, that Mrs. Fry has bidden to Christmas Eve hospitalities, the children present their "Christmas Dream" on a stage wreathed round with evergreen. Five small Fry children and a duo of Withingtons are the principals. And there is a melange of symbolism and fantasy in the "Dream" with the Native for ardent beauty and Raggedy Anne and Raggedy Andy for modern merriment. Jack Horner has a place, and, of course, for all good children the Christmas Dream of gifts and happiness comes true.

A YOUTHFUL WITHINGTON BY NAME KARKILIE, AND HER sister Marietta; and Master Russell T. Fry, Jr., with Louise, Margaret, Sylvia and Dorothy Fry portray the parts. Little Miss Louise is the Madonna. The two Withingtons first mentioned belong to the Lothrop Withingtons and the name Karkilie bestowed on the daughter is Hawaiian and has a sentimental significance—since Mr. Withington hails from the mid-Pacific isles where floats the Stars and Stripes, and named her in honor of his island home.

MRS. FRY HAS A HABIT OF TAKING HER YOUNG PEOPLE "on the road." She did so last summer with her "company" and her play, going up in the country and down to the shore. She does practically the same thing this holiday season, and during the no-studies interlude costumes and properties are packed up and everyone departs for Plymouth, where the "Christmas Dream" is again to be presented with all the joyous enthusiasm the east and the coach can invest it with, in the bracing Pilgrim atmosphere of the South Shore.

MISS REBECCA BENSON MISS KATHERINE FABENS

The Boston Evening American staff photographer pictured these girls as they were about to start out with Christmas greens and cheery smiles. They are prominent debutantes and Junior League members.

MELODIOUS CHIMES OF NEW YEAR'S THAT RING IN 1929'S advent carry the message of sweet romance and celebrate important nuptials in other cities that are of interest to Bostonians. The New Year bells find Miss Lorraine Liggett sharing in the pomp and pageantry of a brilliant Chicago bridal. Before the elite of the Windy City and many of Gotham's social notables Miss Josephine Munroe weds with Herbert Lloyd of Manhattan and Miss Liggett is one of the girls of the bride's train. Imposing St. Chrysostom's is the Chicago edifice redolent of the orange blossom scent on January 2 for the bridal rites, and the Rev. Dr. William Thayer of St. Mark's School in Southboro is slated to intone the solemn promises of wedlock.

AND AS MISS LIGGETT PACES DEMURELY ALTARWARD, with eyes unsmiling as is the way with bride attendants, no doubt her thoughts will picture visions of herself as central figure of a similar pageant when she and Arthur Scrivenor meet at the altar. Miss Liggett's engagement to the young Richmond, Va., man was announced not long ago and brought an intense interest to the many who know the future bride as a horsewoman par excellence and owner of a blue ribbon string that sweeps all before it in the showring and on the course.

THE SWAYING, PENSIVE EYED TROUPE IN ATTENDANCE ON Miss Ruth Brady when she marries the Hon. Michael Scott Cowan in Bernardsville, N. J., includes Miss Sylvia Weld, daughter of the Rudolph Welds of Boston's plutocracy. This alliance of great wealth and noble lineage is internationally interesting; the bride-elect is a daughter of Mrs. James Cox Brady of New York and the late Mr. Brady, and the Hon. Michael is heir presumptive to a British seldom, had a Lordship for a maternal grandparent and is an officer in the Scots guards. The beauties of marriage rites are to be staged in the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, in Bernardsville, with a reception and breakfast at the Brady estate in Gladstone.

MISS BRADY HAS FOR HER MATRON OF HONOR HER SISTER, the former Miss Jane Hamilton Brady, who married Frederick Strong Moseley, Jr., son of the prominent Boston banker. The Buckleys, junior, celebrate in pre-nuptial fashion for the bride and bridegroom on Thursday, with a dinner at the St. Regis in New York and Miss Weld's departure from Boston is sufficiently in season to include this gay affair. The Earl of Eldon, best man for the Honorable Mr. Scott, his brother, comes from London to officiate, and Miss Joan Maxwell likewise makes the ocean crossing to be prominent in the entourage, as maid of honor.

XMAS CAROLS ON HILL TONIGHT

The Ford Hall Singing Society is to join with the other groups on Beacon Hill and sing Christmas Carols tonight. The singing society enlarged by members of the Ford Hall Folks to the number of 200 with lanterns and costumes, will spend this evening on the hill under the leadership of the Ford Hall Folks musical director, Russell A. Cook.

A merry Christmas to all, Father John's Medicine

Christmas Dinner Is Served Old Ladies

The South End Women's Club have just done a delightful thing (other clubs please copy). They gave a Christmas party for 30 old ladies in the neighborhood, to whom the joyous Yuletide season might otherwise have been the most dismal time of the year.

Slow of step they drifted in, by twos and threes. Sweeter than rare perfumes were the tantalizing odors that greeted them, of good things cooking, like a great benediction the spirit of Christmas pervaded the South End House.

Club members became gracious hostesses, and it seemed as though their president, Mrs. Charity King, was everywhere at once making everyone feel at home. Mrs. M. E. Stone, oldest member of the club, was warmly welcomed. Her health has prevented her from getting out much of late. Mrs. W. J. MacDonald paused in her busy round of Xmas shopping to attend the party. No wonder she is treated so royally wherever she goes, she is such a dear! This is one of the clubs within the sixth district of which she is director.

Mrs. C. King

With the guests all comfortably seated in the great hall, which was beautifully decorated with lanterns and a glittering tree, the collegiate mixed octet, Mrs. M. H. Ernst, accompanied by Miss Rosella Rochona, sang a group of simple songs that pleased the old ladies very much.

DELECTABLE MENU

Eleven of the neighborhood children, advanced pupils in drama and dancing under the tutelage of the settlement workers, presented the last act of their Christmas playlet, dressed in costume and sang carols.

One of the prettiest features of the afternoon's entertainment was the toe dancing of two wee crinolined lasses, Virginia Murphy and Eleanor Mogliot, aged 6 and 7 years. They looked as though they had stepped from the center of an old-fashioned valentine.

It was time for "the big eats," and, boy, what a repast!

Hot biscuits, mashed potato, green peas, cranberry sauce, creamed chicken, tea, ice cream and cake, cooked and served by a committee of club members, with Mrs. James Murphy as chairman. The long table was beautifully decorated, each lady found at her place a half pound tin of tea and the club's gift of mints and a cup and saucer.

SNIP OFF GIFTS

With the dinner on the way to becoming a pleasant memory, the guests settled down once more in the great hall to hear John Cronin, inimitable story teller, sing and relate the adventures of "The Captain and the Cat," Milne's "Half Way Down the Stairs" and other naive tales.

The affair concluded with what is known as a "snipping party." Stretched across the hall was a clothes line to which had been attached gifts of every size and shape; with the aid of a pair of shears each guest snipped off the package she preferred.

Like tired, happy children, they were helped on with their wraps, tenderly tucked in motor cars and assisted to the doors of their homes with the feeling in their hearts that, "God's in his heaven, all's right with the world!"

Alumni Spares—Marr, Hughes, Dawson, Gaffney.
Varsity Spares—Norton, Downey, Wood, Donahue, Doenig, McMacher.

By DICK McSWEENEY

After the schoolboy hockey enthusiasts have finished admiring their Christmas gifts tomorrow morning, the majority of them will wander over to the Boston Arena, where the alumni and the varsity teams of English high school clash.

The battle will start at 12 noon, thus giving the participants and spectators plenty of time to reach the St. Botolph st. rink.

The Alumni team is made up of ex-captains and on this fact, many are looking forward to an Alumni victory.

Last year, however, the undergraduate six set back the Alumni stickchasers in a hot 1-0 struggle.

It was the first defeat registered by a varsity team over the Alumni in a long time. The Alumni teams are usually older, heavier and more experienced than the undergraduate sextets.

ALUMNI HAVE EDGE

English Alumni looms have been playing the varsity sextet since 1919, and all during that time the Alumni sing has the upper hand, winning 7 out of 8 games played.

The Alumni team will be made up of ex-high school hockey captains who starred on the ice for the Blue and Blue.

Ray March, left wing, was 1919 captain; Art Ryan, center, was 1920 captain; Arthur Norton, captain in 1921 and now a star at New York University, will be at right wing; Buck O'Hare, pilot in 1918, will hold down the right defense berth.

Left defense will be taken care of by Ed Bailey, Blue and Blue ice leader in 1925. Ed Silverberg, who captained the English sextet in 1924, will be in the net.

GOOD SPARES

The Alumni spares will be Johnny Marr, captain in 1926; Randy Hughes, former English ace; and Frank Gaffney, who played the ice game at Hingham before the War.

The school team will be well represented by Herbie Crindlak, a fast wing. Horn, capable performer at center ice; Dick Powers, an exceptionally good skater at right wing; Leroy Sullivan, speedy defenseman; Jim O'Neil, another good defenseman; and Dick Holton, a smart goal tender.

The English six has played two games this season, defeating B. C. High 2-0, and losing to Jamaica Plain, 3-2.

A large crowd of old grads, as well as relatives and friends of the players, will come out in force to witness the game.

The plan to eliminate night schooling basketball in games has been under discussion lately. Various bad features about keeping the school courtmen playing at night, have convinced some of the headmasters that all afternoon games would be a good thing.

Bill Hunnefield Is Burned in Garage

Philadelphia, Dec. 24—William C. (Bill) Hunnefield, former Chicago White Sox second baseman, burned seriously when he tried to save a new automobile which he was to have been a Christmas present, from a fire which destroyed the garage of his father-in-law, Emanuel Dath, Clifton Heights.

The blaze started from an explosion of unidentified origin.

Ignoring warnings from members of the family, Hunnefield ran into the garage to get the car, but his clothes became ignited and were burned almost entirely off him. He was under a physician's care at the Dath home tonight.

Hudkins Would Bet $10,000 on Self

New York, Dec. 24 (INS)—Ace Hudkins, the well-known Nebraska athlete, has $10,000 worth of confidence in his ability to lick Reed De Vos, crack Boston middleweight, in their much-postponed bout now scheduled to be held at Madison Square Garden next Friday night.

"I'm ready now and I'll be better by Friday, and I'll bet $10,000 on myself if I can get odds of 2 to 1," said the Ace today.

Woodsies Play At Pawtucket Tomorrow

Soccer fans will have to travel to Pawtucket tomorrow in order to witness their favorite eleven in action, as the game scheduled here is the holiday.

The Woodsies will meet the A. P. Coates at Pawtucket in an American League contest which is slated to start at 10:45 a. m.

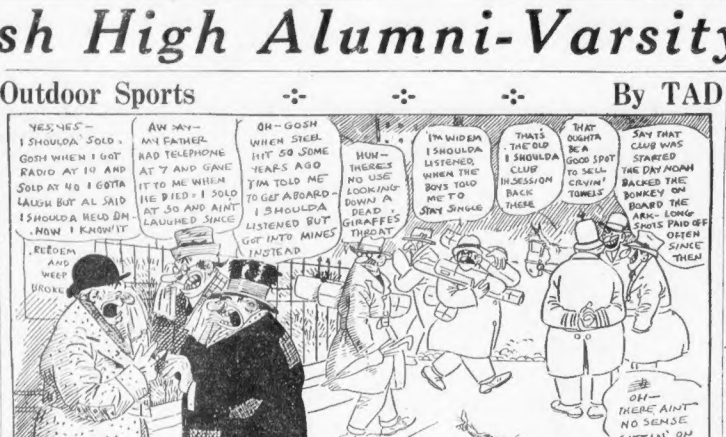
This is rather an early start and he will be local followers will take the afternoon off to see the game.

Other American League games scheduled for tomorrow are Fall River at the Pats Gunnels and Providence at Providence.

Rodgers Suggest Change in Rules

Morgantown, W. Va., Dec. 24 (AP)—Jim E. Rodgers, head coach of football at West Virginia University, is in favor of starting the second half of football games at the point where the first half ends.

He said today he would advocate a rule to make the third quarter a continuation of the second period before a meeting of football coaches and athletic directors at New Orleans this week.



EAGLE SEXTET LACKS RESERVE STRENGTH

Coach Sonny Foley of Boston College must dig up some stores who can check and skate while the regulars rest if the Eagles are going to meet with any success on the ice this winter.

The Maroon and Gold doesn't face another hockey clash until January 5, when it tackles the Flying Frenchmen of Loyola, Montreal, at the Arena. Coach Foley has to get his reserve set in fighting trim or B. C. will drop the second fix game of the season's kinder.

Last year, although the B. C. first team showed very well, Dartmouth was not playing good hockey due to the lack of ice on which to practice and B. C. at home, looked even better than the Green.

But the Boston College starting team tired too quickly and Dartmouth added to Eagle weariness by a lot of body-checking that jolted the Arena.

Larry Allison and Art Morrissey, both valuable veterans, were ill and couldn't stand the pace for more than five minutes at a stretch. And coach Foley's second string found that these positions didn't match up with the Green packsters.

Johnny Gregan played a startling game on right wing on Boston College and Allison made the B. C. defense forces go some when he was Tedesco. But Gregan, too, is not in the best of condition for the rugged ice game and probably won't be for the rest of the winter.

Johnny has worked long and hard to make the B. C. attack click as his wind is fine. But he has two trick knees and also suffered a cut eye during the B. C. game which is skating for the remainder of the campaign.

Gregan is one of the gridiron stalwarts on the B. C. squad. He played the full route against the Dartmouth eleven and was on edge to the dressing room after the contest, but everything is O. K. now. But if Coach Foley had a soon to send in in place of Gregan now and then he'd get much better results.

POLO

By BILL McAULEY

The polo served up at the Commonwealth Armory on Saturday was exceptionally good, despite the fact that both contests resulted in one-sided scores.

There was also quite an increase in the attendance and the large gathering witnessed some fast riding and plenty of scoring.

The veteran 101st Field Artillery was masterful in victory over the Lancers. Needham, Furber and Pitman displayed form worthy of midseason instead of an opening combination. Each hockey a accurate shooting had a great deal to do with his side's victory. He registered 8 goals.

Lincoln Brigham, defense man for the Lancers, played the entire contest and his work was brilliant throughout both on defense and offense. A. N. Hart and Duane also played well for the Lancers.

The feature of the preliminary contest, which resulted in an overwhelming victory for the Danvers club was the playing of the three Pickerings for the winners. Jack Pickering, former member of the Penn Military squad, his father, Len, and an uncle, William, comprised the team which run up a total of 17 goals to four Troop C.

The Norwich Military College trio met with its first defeat Saturday in Brooklyn, where the Squadron A club triumphed by a 15-4 score. Norwich has a stiff schedule and is likely to drop a few more matches before the season is over.

The Penn Military squad, interclub champions, have plenty of material to defend the title this season. The Quakers have six complete teams playing.

Col. Frank K. Hyatt, in charge of polo, is arranging a stiff schedule for the Quakers and the opening game will be at West Point, Jan. 26.

GOLD TORNADO FIT FOR FRAY

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 24 (AP)—Pitt's football city, in which such stars as Jimmy Hines, pulse of football beats today as the Panthers and Golden Tornado, completed their preparations for the gridiron forces here for the game, Calif's Rose Bowl, have been on the scene for several days.

We have missed the trip in spleen and have had a chance to look Rose Bowl over on arrival. We enjoyed every minute of it, and if we lose we will have one big long journey as an alibi. The players, contrary to some reports, are all in good shape and we think we can go for every inch is ready to do his part."

"We know very little about our opponents," he continued. "I know they are a good football team, but our hope is to be able to carry to where Alabama left off."

HORWEEN STILL UNDECIDED

Chicago, Dec. 24 (AP)—Arnold Horween is undecided whether to return to Harvard as football coach or to devote all his time to business, his father, Isadore Horween, has revealed.

The elder Horween is president and his son treasurer of a Chicago tanning company and the latter may decide to quit coaching for that business, the elder Horween said.

Coach Horween is on a honey moon trip in Jamaica.

Hagen Invites Pros to Accompany Team

Archie Smith Coulter, Dec. 24 (AP)—Walter Hagen, captain of the American Ryder Cup team, to play in the British open champion ship at Muirfield, Scotland, may travel with the Ryder team, and then participate in competition for the German open tournament which will be played at the Berlin Golf Club the third week in May. A match has been arranged with a French team in Paris after the German event.

Robert Harlow Hagen's manager, is making arrangements for the invasion, he said. The Ryder matches are scheduled to be played at Leeds, April 25 and 26.

TRIPLE HEADER ON ARENA ICE TOMORROW

AMATEUR HOCKEY AT ARENA THIS WEEK TOMORROW

Bay State League triple header—Cantab Cubs vs. Crescent A. C.; Employers Liability vs. Pleon Yacht Club; St. Catherine's vs. Somerville City Club.

FRIDAY

B. A. A. vs. Pleon Yacht Club.

Pleon Yacht Club of Marblehead will participate in two hockey games at the Arena this week. Tomorrow the sheet-haulers will meet the strong Employers Liability team in one-third of a Bay State League triple-header.

On Friday they will tackle the toughest assignment of their brief career as a team when they meet the strong B. A. A. six.

It will be the first game in three years that a Union sextet. The current team, organized and coached by Jack Hutchinson, well known Boston sportsman, appears to be well up to the B. A. A.'s standard of other years.

Among the players are Sykes Hardy of Dartmouth, Jack Fitzgerald of Boston College, Bob Nelson, Buck Dumaine, Bub Eaton and Ken Marshall.

Sharkey to Fight Anyone in "Chi"

Chicago, Dec. 24 (AP)—Boxing in Chicago has perked up, following announcement that three contenders for the heavyweight title have been signed to box here.

Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia's world's light heavyweight champion, has signed with Paddy Harmon, matchmaker of the Chicago Stadium Corporation, to meet the best heavyweight obtainable before March 31, while Jack Sharkey, Boston, and Johnny Risko, the bounding Cleveland baker, have signed with Matchmaker Jim Mullen of the Chicago Coliseum Athletic Club.

Risko has signed, Mullen announced, to meet the winner of the match between Joe Sekyra, Toledo, and "Cuban Bobby" Brown, Philadelphia, scheduled January 4. Sharkey has agreed to meet anyone in a bout January 18.

Johnny Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey, is still chattering of a match between the ex-sailor and Young Stribling, said encounter to be held in Florida early in the year.

The phone conversation Buckley is supposed to have demanded $100,000 and a third of the gate for the proposed clash.

Nothing has been settled, but the manager and promoter are having a good time arguing about the conflict.

Dempsey Interested In Tia Juana Track

Tijuana, Mexico, Dec. 24 (INS)—Jack Dempsey is now in the racing game down here. It was announced today that the former heavyweight champion of the world had bought an interest in the Tia Juana Jockey Club and had become a partner of James W. Coffroth, Baron Long and Gene Gamble, the latter being Dempsey's manager.

While this is the ex-champion's first venture into race track ownership, he is by no means a stranger to the game, having been associated with Johnny Coburn in the ownership of the stables bearing Coburn's name.

Dempsey and Coburn last season annexed the Tia Juana Derby and, incidentally, more than $50,000, with their colt, Dr. Wilson.

'CASEYS' PLAN ELABORATE TRACK MEET

The K. of C. mile for the James M. Curley trophy and the William C. Prout Memorial race at 440 yards top a list of remarkable indoor features in the eighth annual meeting which the Knights of Columbus of Massachusetts will stage the evening of January 26 in the Boston Garden.

Entry blanks for the meeting, which is a memorial to the late William C. Prout by the athletic world of the country, are out and indicates that the program planned makes the games the peer of any in the country.

It might be well to mention that because of the increased number of seats which will be provided at the Garden and because of the desire of the K. of C. to foster one of Bill Prout's most cherished ideas that of catering to the youth of the country, popular prices will prevail. The highest priced seats will be $2. There will be seats for $1.50 and $1.00. Special seats for the schoolboys will be offered at 50 cents. Boston never before has been able to offer a high class set of track games at such popular prices and the results should be most beneficial.

The program is almost an invitation affair. Besides the two contests mentioned there will be an invitation 30-yard dash; another special rac at 45 yards high hurdles; the Bishop Cheverus 1000-yard run, and a two-mile run with a limited entry.

THREE TITLE EVENTS

Three New England Amateur Athletic Union championships will also be listed on the program. These include a 300-yard run, 45-yard high hurdle race and a running high jump. To help out the college and club men who have yet to make their name handicap contests at 600 yards, a three-quarter mile run and a running high jump will be arranged.

The meet is almost a composite affair, the relay program will consist of more than a dozen races between college, club and scholastic groups, with a special race for K. of C. councils.

It is the first time a track meet has been staged at the Boston Garden and Johnny O'Brien has been working overtime putting the track so that it will be visible to everyone who attends the games.

For the first time in the history of indoor running Boston will be treated to an indoor race of three quarters of a mile. All the relay races will be run at a full mile giving the runners plenty of room to run a full quarter mile and making a worthwhile test of it. There will be a special relay for the schools and Fred O'Brien of the Boston schools is preparing a feature contest for midgets always a popular event for such meetings.

B. U. ICE TEAM WORKS OUT

Boston University and Dartmouth hockey teams will scrimmage from 5 to 6 at the Arena today. This will afford both sextets an opportunity to get a line on each other's style before their clash at Hanover next month.

The Pioneers are getting their fill of competition in practice for the Dartmouth, Boston College and Holy Cross all holding their practice sessions at the Arena.

Coach Vaughan will send his new forward line on the ice first time to see how it shapes up in actual play. Ben Currier will face off with Johnny Bergendahl at left and right wing respectively.

CURRIER'S THIRD SEASON

This is Currier's third campaign on the ice for B. U., but his first appearance at center. In the past two years he has held down the left wing berth but the promotion of Dick Lombard to a first string position forced Coach Vaughan to shift his lineup to still keep Currier, who is a high scorer, available. As a result Bergendahl has been moved from first string center to a wing position on the second team.

The new combination will determine to a great extent the status of Currier and Bergendahl. Both are good men at their jobs but there is not room for both of them on the first line and one of them will be a utility man waged between these two for a regular berth.

Capt. Heck Gibson and Bob Hall are the leading cogs of the top defense positions in a manner that would indicate a good season for the veteran. Sid Sydlerberg, in the net, is a defensive rio that has proved to be a tough nut to crack in three starts speaks well for the defensive ability of these boys.

PRACTICE DAILY

Every member of the Pioneer squad reports regularly for the daily drills with the exception of Hugo Nelson, substitute wing. Nelson is working in a department store in the city and so is unable to attend practice.

In the absence of Nelson, Flea Barosky is handling the right wing post on the second line and doing a good job. Barosky is the smallest man on the squad, weighing but 115

Hornsby Cost Cubs Over Half Million

Chicago, Dec. 24 (AP)—William Wrigley, Jr., is a man with a $6,000,000 hobby.

Wrigley, who built one of America's largest fortunes on a stick of chewing gum, has perhaps the most expensive hobby in the world. It is baseball.

Six million dollars has "William Wrigley, Jr., invested in this hobby through ownership of three baseball clubs, the Chicago Cubs, the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League club and the Reading Internationals, yet he admits he has never banked a cent on his investment for himself.

He wants just one return—a thrill, and he hopes to get his biggest thrill next season by cheering his cubs to a National League pennant. Not since 1918 have the Cubs won a pennant, but with Rogers Hornsby in their lineup Wrigley visions the prize all but won.

GIVES HIS REASONS

Postponing a business conference, Wrigley, a husky man with a perpetual overflow of enthusiasm, told the Associated Press of his dream for a pennant, why he loves baseball, why he gets such a thrill out of it and why he thinks it is the greatest sport.

"I have approximately $6,000,000 invested in baseball, but I wouldn't get out of it for $60,000,000, because I love the game and because it supplies me with thrills everytime I watch a game," he said.

"While I have never received a cent for myself from baseball I have received thrills that money cannot buy. And think of the fun millions of other people get out of the game!

"My ambition, naturally, is to see the Cubs win the National League pennant next year. And I believe we have got the goods this time, barring injries to two or three of our best players.

BEHIND HORNSBY.

"Let the critics condemn Hornsby if they want to. I believe he has been sinned against more than he has sinned. I think Rogers Hornsby is not only the greatest hitter in baseball—greater even than Babe Ruth, the figures will show—but also that he is one of the cleanest men and one of the greatest characters in baseball.

Rogers Hornsby wants only one thing on the diamond. That is victory. It rest me almost a half-million dollars to buy and players to get Rogers, but he is worth it."

"Nothing that I can help can stop me from seeing a game for free. Last summer I turned down back directors' meetings to watch baseball games."

Wrigley likes fast games, but he would rather see a game end 4 to 2 than 14 to 12.

LIKES HITTING GAME.

"A pitcher's battle is a treat for some people," he said, "but personally I like to see them clip that apple."

As owner of the Cubs, Wrigley likes to remain in the background as much as possible.

"I can see nothing but a bright future for baseball," Wrigley concluded, "it's getting greater every year. Better baseball is being played and the better sportsmanship prevails. I'm in the game as long as I live."

Independent Soccer League Is Formed

New York, Dec. 24 (AP)—Following their plan of organizing on a national scale, the clubs of the American Soccer League and the Southern New York State Football Association, which were suspended by the United States Football Association, have formed an Independent Football League as the American Soccer Association.

The organization, formed at a meeting here yesterday, will be on the same order as the U. S. F. A., and affiliation with the International Football Federation will be sought.

James Duff, president of the New Jersey Association, was elected president. Plans also were laid to conduct a cup competition and it was announced that 20 clubs, including several members of the American League, had signified their intention of entering.

Lassman's Condition Is Not Serious

New York, Dec. 24 (INS)—In a letter written to Albert Nikoff, graduate manager of athletics at New York University, Percy Dingman today said that Al Lassman, football captain, who was injured in the Carnegie Tech game, was not suffering from a blood clot on his brain, but that his condition was not critical.

Dr. Dingman is the medical attending surgeon at French Hospital, where the grid star is a patient. The letter was declared to clear up rumors that Lassman's mind was affected and that he was near death.

Coach Chick Meehan has said that Lassman would be out of the hospital in 10 days.

Mother of Family of Golf Stars Is Dead

Indianapolis, Dec. 24 (AP)—Mrs. Emma Jane Nelson, 70, mother of six sons nationally known a sport instructors? died at her home last night after an illness of six months.

The sons, Lee, Wallace, Chick, Richard, Chester and Ervin Nelson, all golf instructors, survive.

RISKO TO WORK HERE BEFORE SCHAAF GO

Johnny Risko intends to get in a couple of hard days' work in the Hub prior to his ten round test against Ernie Schaaf, the hard-hitting sailor, at the new Boston Garden, Friday night.

Risko informed Promoter Mack of the Garden that he would be in the Hub on Wednesday. He plans to work out at Jim Toland's gym on Wednesday and Thursday.

Risko hasn't quite recovered from the stunning defeat handed him here by Jimmy Maloney but, apparently, Promoter Mack has promised the Cleveland baker another chance with the South Boston idol. But Maloney will take it easy for a few weeks after three hard fights in about three weeks.

SCHAAF CONFIDENT

Judging by the training methods adopted by Schaaf in his daily gymnasium workouts, the Hub heavy has visions of handing Risko when they meet Friday.

Risko's aggressive tactics beat both Jack Sharkey and Paulino and he will depend upon the same plan of battle to take Schaaf into camp.

In spite of his experience in the ring, Schaaf faces a brilliant future for he is only 21 years old and has had but one season due to being handled slowly. In facing Risko, he is accepting the greatest opportunity of his career for a victory over the Cleveland rubberoon will put him in line for some lucrative matches.

ERNIE SAW RISKO

Schaaf was an interested spectator at the ringside when Risko registered a knockout over and the Hub boy thinks he knows the exact style to adopt against the westerner to win. The end-all of Friday night's show, which will comprise 12 rounds of boxing, indicates that the outcome of the game will be witnessed by one of the best fighting spectators of the season.

Jimmy Byrne, former Louisville heavyweight, now making his home in the Hub, who is surely punching his way to a return bout with Mercurio, the New York Italian, in the secondfeet bout.

It will only require a couple of more victories for Byrne to put him in line for a return bout with the lowweights. He might be there even now but for the fact that it is almost impossible to procure an opponent for him on account of his southpaw style.

Hub fans are also interested in the appearance here of George Hermann of New York, former national amateur heavyweight champion, who won his title in this city last April. Hermann will meet Phil Dyer, another of Jack Kearns' heavyweights.

COAST GOLFERS SEEK LAURELS

Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Dec. 24 (AP)—The army of winter golfers kneaded back to the California mainland today in search of other battlegrounds with Horton Smith, one of its youngest members, holding undisputed honors in the $2500 Santa Catalina Island open golf tournament which closed yesterday.

Smith, Bonita, California professional, finished in runnerup to a gusty trail to Scotland's California envy has seen to win first place in the event. He was faultless in the 21-around Mississippian, and in this way he victory over Walter Hagen, five strokes, and other nationally known amateur and professional's by, 3. He made the finale count for the 72-hole, his card, 68—68—71—73, gave him $500 as the victor's prize.

While Smith's victory was by a great margin of victory was slight, it was considered more noteworthy in that Smith had to battle against a gale all day and was considered a sure bet to overhaul Smith in the final round. He failed to close as a favorite finish, but despite his brilliant golf he was forced to watch the young Californian receive the trophy symbolic of victory. Hagen, turned in a card of 62—62—70—72—246 for second money. He had a 66 in the first round.

Fay Coleman, young Los Angeles amateur and holder of the Southern California amateur championship, surprised all by lifting himself into a tie for third place with Dan Williams of Shenandoah, N. Y. They were 11 strokes behind Smith, however, each getting a 289.

Bruins Battle Blackhawks at Garden Tomorrow

CHI SEXTET HAS YOUNG STARS

Mickey MacKay to Play in Boston; Bruins Must Step to Down Fighting Blackhawks.

The Bruins step out tomorrow night with high hopes of making the fans a Christmas present of a decisive victory over the Chicago Blackhawks.

The Bruins continue to improve in practice. They have worked out four times since the Detroit game and will skate today to have all hands on edge for the game tomorrow night.

Chicago comes here with a mediocre record, but with a young team that has been fighting through 60 minutes of every game and which showed a high calibre of hockey while losing the Bruins 1-1 in 70 minutes of play when they met last month in Chicago.

CHICAGO BETTER

The Blackhawks are potentially much stronger than a year ago, and Herb Gardiner, their new manager, is looking for the team to step out any day and start winning games that hitherto they have been losing by a single point.

It is uncertain whether or not Mickey MacKay will start.

With Oliver, Gainor, Green, Pettinger, Clapper, Welland, Galbraith and MacKay for forwards, and Shore, Hitchman, Clapper, Gainor and Galbraith for defense men, the Bruins can put a well-balanced team on the ice.

MacKay worked out with the Bruins Saturday.

Mickey, a quiet individual, likes Boston players and fans.

AGAINST EX-MATES

MacKay incidentally will be playing against former teammates tomorrow night, because he was with Chicago a year ago, and it develops that the 17 goals he scored were made in 24 games, or up to the time he broke his wrist. The wrist is all right now.

Mickey is 29, and his wife and daughter Geraldine will leave their home in Grand Forks, British Columbia, immediately and join him here. The Boston fans will like Mickey. He has shown in his practice sessions that he is a hard worker.

The Christmas night game should be one of the most interesting clashes of the season. There are some Chicago veterans, notably Dick Irvin, the great right winger, who was second highest scorer in the National League two years ago: Ty Arbour, Johnny McKinnon, Wentworth and Taylor, who broke in a year ago.

On top of those players, Manager Herb Gardiner has a flock of high scoring minor league stars of a year ago. Vic Ripley, Lolo Couture, Johnny Gottselig, Val Heffinger, and Harold March. Gardiner, in the Chicago nets, is playing his second season.

Herb Gardiner, the Chicago manager, will be remembered as the most valuable player in the National League two years ago, and the player who was considered responsible for Canadiens' great playing success a year ago.

He had a hard job at Chicago, but is gradually developing a team, and the Bruins do not underestimate his managerial ability.

Cambridge Pirates to Play Keene

The Cambridge Pirates, champions of the Inter-Community Basketball League and one of the best semi-pro court outfits in Greater Boston, will open their season at Keene, N. H., on New Year's Eve against the Keene Town team.

All of the players who brought the championship to the Pirates last year are still with the team, including Capt. Clark, O'Malley, Grasso and Scott forwards; G. Anderson, C. Anderson and W. Murphy, backs; Tarbert, E. Murphy and J. Langley, centers.

The quintet recently beat the strong Watertown Elks in a practice game, which indicates that it will be in the running for the Inter-Community title again this campaign.

Manager Joe Cochrane has filled all home dates, but still has a few away-from-home dates open and is willing to book games with any formidable opposition. His address is 18 Elliot st., Cambridge, and the phone number is Porter 2261-M.

Tufts Court Team Strong This Year

Although the vacation period is on in the Tufts basketball team will resume practice Wednesday and continue through Thursday and Friday.

Now that he has fully recovered from his recent illness, Coach Lou Manley will take charge of the squad again. During his absence Arthur Sampson has uncovered some promising material for the Brown and Blue.

There is such a wealth of talent at Tufts this season that even Capt. Ernest Hermann will have to step hard to hold his position.

Havana, Cuba, Dec. 24.—Sixty-eight riders have accepted mounts during the first three days of the meeting.

"I WISH everybody in this great world of ours a merry and happy Christmas and a prosperous New Year," said Mr. Boston cheerfully, as he stepped into the sporting department today.

"I add an extra little wish for unusual happiness for the readers of this column and for our friends in the athletic world.

"Great fame probably get greater joy out of the Christmas season than any minor group of individuals. They have big hearts and they get joy out of helping others.

"The wonderful thing about sport leaders and fans is that they do not restrict their generosity and good cheer to the Christmas season. They are on the job 12 months in each year. They have yet to refuse to give their assistance to any worthy cause.

"I wish to take this opportunity to express my appreciation of the Christmas greetings which I have received from so many people in the sport world.

"As Tiny Tim, the brain child of Charles Dickens, said:

"'May God bless each and every one of them.'

"OUR athletes and promoters have a great deal to be thankful for this Christmas. Sports were never as popular as they are today. The various forms of athletics are attracting tremendous crowds in all parts of the country.

"Boston is the heart of the sport boom. The new Boston Garden has done a great deal to put athletics on a firm basis in this city. Boxing and hockey have been drawing big crowds at the Garden, while the place will be taxed to capacity when Paul Bowser stages the Sonnenberg-Lewis heavyweight wrestling championship bout there on Jan. 4.

"I LOOK for the sport boom to continue next year. Thousands of new sport fans are attending the various big athletic events.

"Years ago if a person was a baseball fan he probably was not interested in other branches of sport. The same went for followers of football, boxing, track athletics and hockey. Nowadays most people who are interested in sports follow all of the various major branches of athletics.

"I can remember when a wrestling bout, for example, never concerned rival promoters. With Lewis and Sonnenberg due to clash on Jan. 4, there will not be any boxing at the Garden that week. This is because fight fans will be all steamed up over the wrestling jam.

"TEX RICKARD has already received a fine Christmas gift in Jack Dempsey's promise he will return to the ring for another shot at the big money. With the Tiger back in action, there will be a million dollar gate in New York next June.

"The Red Sox and Braves would like to receive a few high class ball players from Santa Claus, while Eddie Mack, Col. Bob McKinley and Tony Palazzo will be perfectly satisfied if Santa will drop some attractive ring cards into their laps.

"I HOPE Santa is considerate to readers of this column, while I feel he will be particularly kind to the old folks and to children. In the rush of the holidays, don't forget the old folks and the little ones. Try to do something to bring them happiness."

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

With the lowly Pittsburgh Pirates on their heels, the Bruins cannot afford to be other than serious tomorrow night when they meet the even more lowly Chicago Blackhawks at the Boston Garden.

Until last Thursday, the Pirates had won but one game but since that time they have upset both the New York Americans and the Toronto Maple Leafs and they are now but one game behind the Bruins.

Frank Fredrickson made a most auspicious debut with the Pirates. Along with speeding up the Pittsburgh attack throughout the entire game, Fredrick came through with the winning goal in the third period, a performance of such a feat will put the former Bruin on a pedestal with Honus Wagner. Yes, Honus was a shortstop.

From the accounts of the Pittsburgh-Toronto game, Manager Odie Cleghorn gave Fredrickson a free rein. Odie Cleghorn is one of the best judges of hockey talent in the game. He appreciates that Fredrickson cannot be driven and as long as the Irishman believes he can play his own style of hockey.

Mickie McKay has been working out with the Bruins at the Garden since Friday and he has made a fine impression. Although McKay is a veteran there is some good hockey left in him. With the Pirates pressing them, the Bruins can use some goals to advantage.

On the journey from Pittsburgh, Mickie McKay shifted from a right to a left hand shot.

The Cleghorn quartet is very optimistic over the fact that they won their first game of the season, which moved them to within two points of the Bruins. The Pittsburgh lassoing the goose out from under the New Haven Eagles.

There are many second lines in the National Hockey league which do not measure up to the standards of Gizzy Hart, Art Chapman and Cooney Cotnoir of the Rhode Island Reds.

Once again the New Haven Eagles have chosen themselves to be shortchanged. They were foolish enough to sell Cecil Dye Wood to a rival which is under the leadership of Odie Cleghorn. Had the New Haven team been in uniform, the Eagles would probably be enjoying a party of well-behaved Sunday school boys.

All that is necessary to put the final touches on amateur hockey at the Garden is to schedule one more game such as was played there last Saturday night. It is about time that promoters began to realize that there is no amateur team in New York capable of making a showing against such a team as the University Club.

For 17 years the St. Nicholas hockey club has been existing on the reputation of Hobey Baker. Since the days of Hobey Baker, Win Kuhn and Al Peacock, St. Nick has not had a team that could hold its own against the weakest team in the Boy State League.

If the Garden is going to stage Saturday night amateur attractions they must get the best. That the fans know more about hockey at the Garden than whoever booked the University Club-St. Nick game was evidenced by the fact that only a handful attended.

Most of the Tigers are on their way home for the Christmas holidays. Manager Eddie Powers, Harley Frost, Clark Heyd, Eddie Burke and Sonny Mackinnon went over the road from New Haven to Springfield last night to make connections for Toronto, while Pond and Joe Cantani, Herb Rheaume and Ludger Desmarais departed for Montreal this morning.

Watertown Seeks Games

The Watertown Hockey Club desires games away from home with any teams. It prefers to play St. Joseph's S. & A., Lexington Wanderers, Middlesex Sportsmen, Everett Lion Tamers, Concord Town Team, Brush All Stars, Maynard Smiths, Call Manager R. Maloney, Middlesex 5113-M.

'LILAC TIME' AT RENOVATED GLOBE

The old Globe Theater on Washington st., one of the mellowest theatrical institutions in the city, has started on a new phase of its existence. Looking better than ever, the old house, painted and decorated throughout, is now an up-to-date movie palace. It is owned and operated by that rapidly expanding theater chain, NETOOO.

Colleen Moore

The Globe is fully equipped with Vitaphone and Movietone arrangement, as well as with a large, deep-toned organ. Colleen Moore in the sound film, "Lilac Time," is the feature. This picture was originally a play written and given by Jane Cowl directly after the war.

"The City of Purple Dreams," another full-length film on the Globe bill, is a dramatic story of a youth who climbed from vagabondage up to a big place in the business world. Barbara Bedford, Robert Frazer and David Torrence have the leading roles.

"Peter Pan," the picture made from Barrie's famous stage fantasy, with Betty Bronson in the title role, is being shown at matinees to please the children.

There is a special accompaniment with "Lilac Time," which is an up-to-date sound film. The other pictures have an organ accompaniment played by George Abell.

Frank Meagher continues as manager of the Globe, a position he has held for many years.

RIN-TIN-TIN IN TALKING FILM

Not to be outdone by any star in Hollywood, Rin-Tin-Tin, that smart dog, has gone and made a talking picture. It is called, "Land of the Silver Fox," and it may be seen this week at the Scollay.

In it you can hear him speak right up for his supper or, in sterner moments, give a proper scolding to big Tom Santschi, the double-dyed villain of the piece. Other supporting players are Leila Hyams, the heroine; Carrol Nye, the hero; an Indian lady known as Princess Neola, and Oscanonta, said to be the only acting papoose in the business.

As may be expected, there are many talking sequences, and the entire action takes place in the country of snows, Eskimos, bad Indians and the red-coated troopers of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

Next to Rin-Tin-Tin, who emotes as well as usual, gets his man and does some sheik stuff, the outstanding actor of the production is young Master Oscanonta. In a year of child prodigies, the Indian toddler takes his place with the best.

Miss Hyams makes an adequate heroine, Nye skips from one set of troubles to another as the hero, while upon the broad shoulders of Tom Santschi falls all the villainy. Santschi has been playing villains since the films began, and in every photoplay in which he appeared there was a fine, fast and ferocious fight.

This time the battle is undertaken and conducted by none other than Rin-Tin-Tin, who rivals Santschi in the number of cinematic scraps to his credit. Naturally, the canine star polishes off the villain very thoroughly, and has time for a last sentimental closeup with his feminine friend, Nanette.

Shorter vitaphone subjects and vaudeville acts are also shown at the Scollay Square.

"Gang War" Tops Keith-Albee Bill

Jack Pickford does some of the best work in his career in "Gang War," now playing at the Keith-Albee Theater. As a saxaphone playing kid who dares to love the sweetheart of the barbary Coast gangster, he gives a performance such as he seldom gave when he was far more popular. Olive Borden is the girl in the case and Eddie Gribbon furnishes considerable heart appeal and finesse as the gangleader who shoots as square-ly as he knows how.

Jack Pickford

The thrill scenes are laid during the celebrations of the Chinese New Year in San Francisco. Hundreds of extras are crowded into the narrow streets when a dozen speeding cars dash through the streets spewing bullets as they go. Several buildings are riddled by machine-gun fire before the thrill climax is reached.

The cast of "Gang War" also includes Walter Long, and Frank Chew, noted Chinese character actor.

There is a bright bill of vaudeville also at the Keith-Albee.

South Sea Film on Casino Bill

On the new Casino bill is a first-run picture called "The Isle of Lost Man," which deals stirringly with piratical raids, buried treasure haunts in the South Seas, fights ashore and afloat and romance to match the rest of the melodrama.

Colleen Moore's latest film, "Lilac Time," with sound effects, is another feature on the screen bill. Vaudeville and short films complete the offerings.

WHITE SHADOWS IN THE SOUTH SEAS

EXCERPTS FROM THE MANY FINE NOTICES

"Many movie cameras have been aimed at the South Sea Islands, but the M-G-M unit came home with something that is different and incomparably fine."
—John Hutchens, Eve. Post

"One of the most beautiful stories ever filmed. A screen poem in which is caught all the magic and poignant glamour of the South Seas. An enchanting love story. Romantic scenes, unforgettable. Sound effects are extremely effective. Don't miss seeing 'White Shadows'."—Pelswick, Eve Journal

"A powerful cinema indeed. Epic drama. Synchronization admirable."
—Cohen in the Eve. Sun

"Exotic settings of breath-taking beauty. Destined to remain at the Astor Theatre for many a week. Produced and photographed on the natural locations and with the ancient native tribes of the Marquesas Islands. Subtly and with commendable artistry, W. S. Van Dyke, the director, wove his story. The result is photographic composition the like of which has not been brought to the screen in months. There isn't a doubt that it will remain at the Astor for a long time."
—Gerhard, Eve. World

"Remarkable under-the-seas shots of pearl divers at work, battling such things as giant clams and octopi. And with almost brutal sincerity has the effect of the deep sea pressure on the heart, lungs and very life of the diver been shown."
—Holmesdale. World

"Beautifully done, and reaches to the heart."
—Threr, New

"White Shadows in the South Seas' was made on the story's actual location. Breath-takingly beautiful. A picture you cannot afford to miss and when you have seen it, you will probably want to visit the Astor Theatre a second time."
—Cannon, N Y America

"By all means see 'White Shadows'."—Times Mid-Week Pictorial

"White Shadows in the South Seas' is a worthy addition to the midsummer entertainment of Broadway."
—Colfax. Graphic

"Handsomely photographed, skilfully directed and genuinely absorbing."—Watts, Jr., Herald Trib

"Different from the ordinary movie. An unusual story. An unusual setting. Unusual scenes."
—Nichols, Times

"This latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer opus is really different. Far out of the ordinary."—Morn. Tel.

BY FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

FROM Atlantic to Pacific, and from Great Lakes to Gulf, the broadcasters of the National Broadcasting and Columbia Systems joined last night and last noon to carry the message and song of the brotherhood of Christmas to millions of listeners in the United States and Canada. Never before in the history of broadcasting has there been such a concerted effort to send out Christmas cheer and sentiment, and to bring to the fireside of the humblest home in the land the voices of the great and near great.

SAMPLE LOG DAY

DURING THE latter part of the night Christmas Eve, and early Christmas morning, the broadcasters will be on the air with special programs. Many of the stations will broadcast midnight services from churches in their cities. Others will broadcast Christmas carols. Some will broadcast Christmas stories and sermons. Many will broadcast Christmas messages from famous men and women.

NATIONAL HOOKUPS

Many of the programs will be broadcast over the entire network of the National Broadcasting Company and Columbia Broadcasting System. Others will be broadcast over local stations.

ANNUAL HOOKUP

The annual Christmas broadcast of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be broadcast over a network of stations. Other programs will be broadcast over the Boston stations.

FLIGHTS and FLIERS by George W. Hamblin

There now remains no doubt in the minds of the public that the Pacific Ocean can be flown by airplane. Two flights have been made, one by Lieut. Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith and Charles T. P. Ulm, Australians, and the other by Lieut. Arthur Goebel and his navigator, Lieut. William V. Davis, Jr., Americans. Both flights were successful, and both crews are now safe and sound. The Australians flew from Oakland, Cal., to Brisbane, Australia, a distance of 7,389 miles, in 83 hours and 13 minutes flying time. The Americans flew from Oakland to Wheeler Field, Honolulu, a distance of 2,400 miles, in 25 hours and 50 minutes flying time.

The Australians had a hard time of it. They were forced down at sea, and had to make repairs to their plane. They were also forced down on Fanning Island, where they had to wait for a ship to take them to Honolulu. The Americans had a smooth flight, and arrived in Honolulu ahead of schedule.

Both flights were made in planes equipped with Wright Whirlwind engines. The Australians' plane was a Fokker, and the Americans' plane was a Lockheed Vega.

The Pacific Ocean has been flown. The next step is to fly it non-stop. That will be a much harder task, and will require a plane with a much greater fuel capacity.

FRED TOYE RADIO EDITOR — VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

Gift Laden Ships Plow Air Waves

BY FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

FROM Atlantic to Pacific, and from Great Lakes to Gulf, the tentacles of the National Broadcasting and Columbia Systems reach out tonight and tomorrow to carry the oft-repeated song of the herald angels of Christmastide. Ancient hymns of the Nativity, carols, cradle songs, cantatas, orations and sermons will fling to the heavens the glad tidings that a Child is born in a cave in the town of Bethlehem.

SIMPLE LEGENDS

EFFECTIVE, indeed, would be the reverent enactment of some of the gentle old-world legends of the Christ Child, perhaps more true to the spirit of the day than the mistletoe, holly, yule log, Christmas tree conglomeration of pagan origin France and Germany and Italy and the Orient are full of simple, touching little tales that have been handed down through the ages—tales full myths such as that of the barnyard animals who discuss the wonder of the Night of Nights.

NATION-WIDE AUDIENCES

ALONG conventional lines, the entire country will hear programs of Christmas type from the Central Motion Picture Emporium, Paliwollie, Selberling Silvers, Wrigley Spearmint, Warner Brothers, and perhaps a few others. Meantime, local stations, not affiliated with broadcasting chains, will receive church choirs in recurring groups, offering long-rehearsed sacred numbers.

ANNUAL READING

COPEY, somewhat known as Professor Charles Townsend Copeland, Harvard's most colorful institution, will deliver one of his famous lectures over WBZ tomorrow at 8 o'clock. He will do a portion of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" and three chapters from the Book of Revelations. The latter is the section which en.s. "Then are they which came out of great tribulation and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple: and he that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of water; and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." Those words have been worth probably a hundred million dollars to the cause of foreign relief.

Radio Rib Ticklers

WEEI—Tom Goodwin of Jamaica Plain, while on a visit to the Edison studio, read the following dialog:

"Did you announce the title to which I now on the air would play anything on request?"

"Sure!"

"Well then, for heaven's sake ask them to play dominoes."

WBZA—Elliott Schall of Cambridge set a laugh when Dan Hornton announced that his orchestra would next play a number entitled "Speaking of a dollar bill, I'll get buy as long as I have you, Sweet Musician."

WNAC—Larry Corbett of Dedham buzzes joyously over the information, gleamed from the Household Radio Guide, that perfectly lovely new motor cars can be had at reduced prices from an ash dealer in Malden.

WLW—Quotes M. C. F. of Dorchester:

"You goin' to send all yo' friends Christmas cards, Andy?"

"Nooo. Ah done lost my erazer! Send us your name, M. C. F., and you'll get the dollar.

Song in to the Boston Evening American Radio Department the best jokes and amusing incidents which you hear over the radio. For every contribution printed, a prize of One Dollar will be sent to the writer.

Three new airships were demonstrated at the airport last week, one of them a New England product. It was a Selmens-Italske Kitty Hawk, and was flown here by Hank Klutt of the Bourdon Aircraft Corp. of Hillsgrove, R. I.

The other new planes were a big Bellitrus CH carrying a monoplane of the Wilmerdon, D. and piloted by Bridey Short, formerly in the air mail service, and a Warner-ened Challenger which arrived from Hagerstown, Md., with Charlie Emerson of Skyways at the stick.

The Sunday before Christmas was just another day to Capt. Richard W. Mackie and Ned Carrington, who fly the Boston-New York air mail. Because they have a large amount of Christmas mail the two pilots, who usually have Sunday off, were forced to take the trip as usual. The Postoffice Department having issued a permit for the contractors to fly yesterday.

Eddie O'Toole, the genial manager of Associated Aircraft, is planning next summer's campaign with fervor. Eddie plans to have air-cooled Wacos for his school, but can't decide what kind of motors to use.

Leo "Skip" Tracey, chief pilot of the Springfield Airport Corporation at Fisk Park, Springfield, came down to spend the holidays with his mother. Tracey says things are progressing nicely at Fisk Park, and that the airport is in world-full shape. Springfield Airport Corporation flies Curtiss-Ardves, for which it is New England distributor and also has a Wace Ten.

Russell Boardman, the first wing-walker in New England, is at the airport with his Whirlwind motor Travel Air. Boardman is called the "Flying Cowboy." He owns a ranch in Arizona.

Cross-country trips were few last week. The Boston Airport Corporation had but one trip to New York, and Skyways, Inc., had a visit from Alcott Payson, manager of the Portland airport for the company.

Pay-to-fly took one hour and 10 minutes to make the 90 miles down from Portland, with a 40-mile wind blowing exactly across his course.

Tom Croce, inventor of the Croce Safety Stick, is making a tour of the New England airports with a sample of his stick. Out at the Chicago airport Tom Dwyer, D. and enjoyed the thrill of hearing his stick praised up to the skies.

Carl Gordon, owner of Gordon's Air Service, of Dalton, came in in his Waco Ten with two prospective students for his school. The boys were given their physical exam. by Maj. Cummings, and pronounced O. K. Russell Robertson is flying for Gordon down at Bolts Airport, Mansfield.

Dick Engel dropped in from Taunton to say hello and wish everybody Merry Christmas. Engel is building a two-place instruction ship at Roy Keeley's shop in Taunton.

THE QUESTION BOX
(Queries pertaining to aviation will be answered in this column every Monday. Address your queries to "Flights and Fliers," Boston Evening American, 8 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.)

Q. Are any of the flying schools in operation during the winter months?—A. B. M., Melrose.

A. Every flying school around Boston is operating these nice, snappy days. You can learn to fly just as easily during the winter as you can in the summer.

And the writer of this column wishes you all the merriest of Merry Christmases, and the happiest of many new Years.

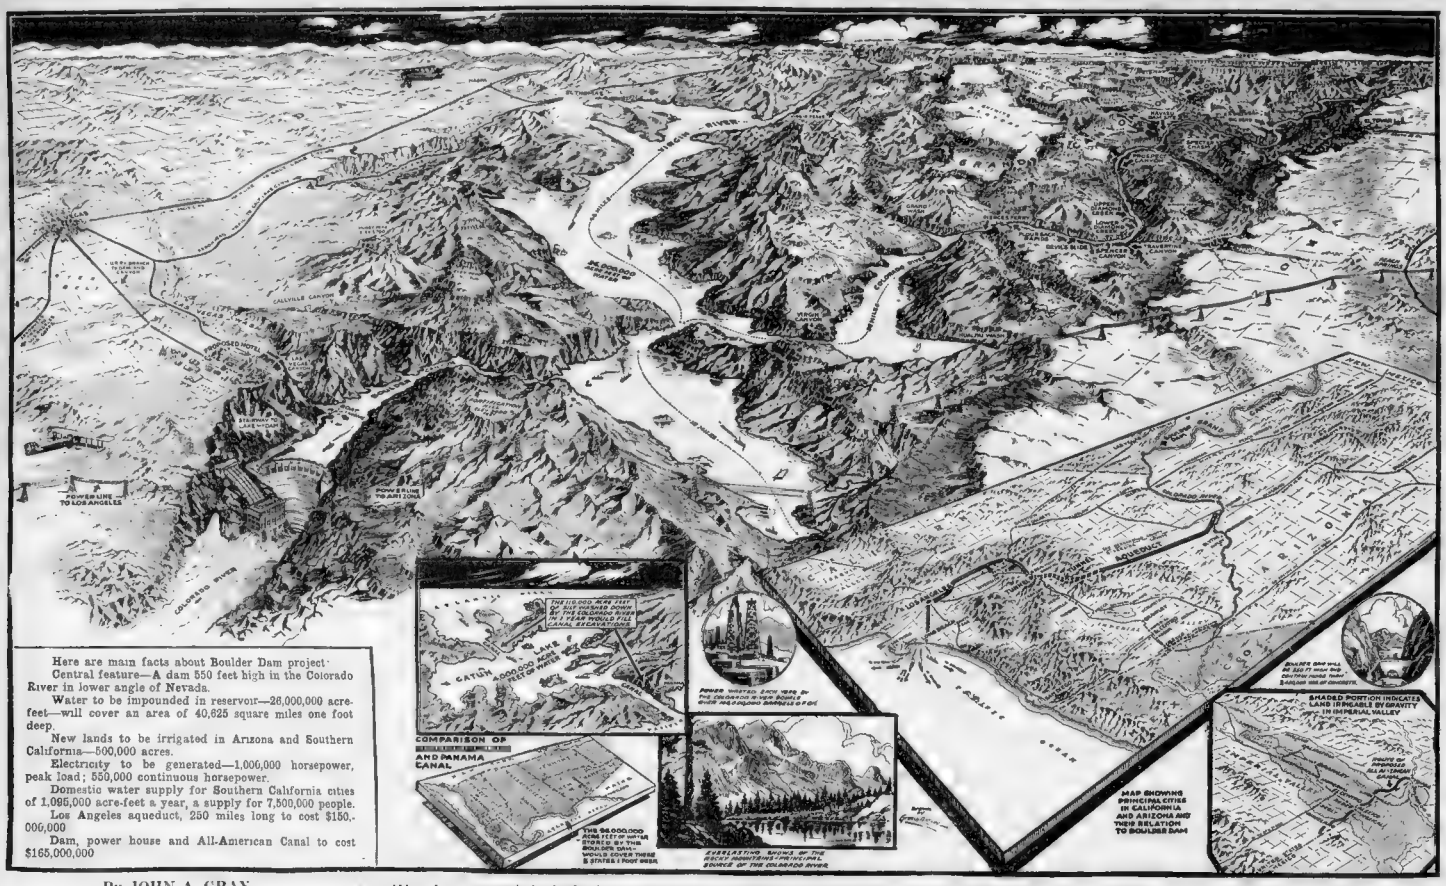
Story of Victorious Fight For Boulder Dam Is Epic of Constructive American Statesmanship



Here are main facts about Boulder Dam project:

Central feature—A dam 550 feet high in the Colorado River in lower angle of Nevada.

Water to be impounded in reservoir—26,000,000 acre-feet—will cover an area of 40,625 square miles one foot deep.

New lands to be irrigated in Arizona and Southern California—500,000 acres.

Electricity to be generated—1,000,000 horsepower, peak load; 550,000 continuous horsepower.

Domestic water supply for Southern California cities of 1,095,000 acre-feet a year, a supply for 7,500,000 people.

Los Angeles aqueduct, 250 miles long to cost $150,000,000

Dam, power house and All-American Canal to cost $165,000,000

By JOHN A. GRAY

IN SIGNING the Boulder Dam Bill President Coolidge wrote finis to a contest which has been, in many respects, the most remarkable and significant in the legislative and economic history of this country.

Millions of readers will understand why the Hearst newspapers made a special feature of the story of that happening and the drama of great events that led up to it.

It is very much worth while to have been an actor and determining influence in such a fight!

"Epic" is the single word that describes it.

Growing from its status as a purely sectional question when conceived a decade ago, and given its launching by the Hearst papers in Los Angeles, the proposal of lower Colorado River development gathered volume until it occupied the center of the American stage at Washington and came to be known as the most stupendous engineering project of its kind in history.

This newspaper and its associates are proud to have been the great national agency which has given to officials, legislators and the people generally the facts about this enterprise.

The issue has provided a tremendous opportunity for newspaper service, both in promoting the material interests of many millions living in an important section of this country and in defending and asserting popular rights against private greed.

On one side, in the latter stages of this conflict, were arrayed the organized, nationwide force of the power industry, representing billions. The right of the people to appropriate and develop their own natural resources was on the other. Not very formidable. But it became irresistible when given expression.

It has been a fighting campaign all the way. The project was opposed at its very inception by the private power interests. They wanted the Colorado River. Not at once, but to be reserved for them. The power trust had what was, in effect, a "keep off" sign on that great stream. But some people in the Southwest who had a vision, just a handful in the beginning, discovered in the enormous annual flow of the Colorado—most of it wasted in the gulf to the south—a potentiality that meant, when properly directed, wealth, new millions made prosperous and happy, a titanic destructive force converted into a benign and productive servant.

It became the job of these papers to present the constructive side and, at the same time, meet the forces of greed organized to defeat any such intention.

The last feature became the real, the BIG fight. Without the machinations and falsehoods of the power lobby the matter of enlightening the people and Congress upon this issue would have been comparatively simple—just an accumulation of facts about a river going to waste; arid lands to be irrigated; cities needing domestic water; an ideal site for a dam; the opportunity for power development; all of the economic factors present to make the venture a financial success.

But the discovery came at a very early stage that the opposition intended to make the subject exceedingly complicated, and to surround and invest it with all manner of difficulties.

The power interests, when they came to understand the Boulder Dam proposal, saw that it would provide a spectacular object lesson in the benefits to be gained by the people in entering into the possession and use of their own resources.

In opposing the project these interests have not overlooked an angle that could possibly affect any group or section.

They have played upon the fears of cotton growers of the South—"Imperial Valley would bring in an enormous acreage of competing cotton."

They have stirred up farm organizations of the Middle West—"The new lands to be irrigated would glut the markets with products of the soil."

"The tremendous content of silt in the river would soon fill up the dam." "Deposits of salt in the reservoir site would make the water unfit for domestic use." "The dam would cost hundreds of millions." "Such a dam couldn't be built; if it did not give way on account of its extraordinary size."

"There's no power market and the dam would never pay for itself." "The All-American Canal is a dream; it's impossible to run such a ditch through the sand dunes." And so on almost without limit.

But the chief reliance of the power trust and other special interests was this, that Imperial Valley is in danger of being inundated; "so," they said, "let's have the Government build a LOW dam in the river. That can be done at Uncle Sam's expense. It will cost only $25,000,000 or so, and will be finished within two or three years. When that is done the whole question will be settled."

That plea impressed many people, including Congressmen.

It even impressed important groups and associations in California, where, of all places in the world, a clear vision was needed.

To steer the project past all these obstructions, to avoid the imposing series of Scyllas, on the one hand and the unusually formidable succession of Charybdises on the other; to dodge the suggestion of the well-meaning but badly advised friend as well as the direct thrust of the out-and-out enemy—all this has been a major work.

Thus we but sketch the difficulties and obstacles encountered; the Boulder Dam road from obscurity and impossibility to certainty and shining success has been rougher than anyone could describe.

The real problem, as it turned out, was to win a nationwide decision; for the project never would have gone over without the weight of popular approval behind it.

To put Boulder Dam over was one of the biggest assignments the Hearst papers ever received from their chief; and it's a matter of tremendous pride with all concerned that the work cut out has been well and successfully done.

No one, considering Colorado River development in the early days following the war, could have foreseen or guessed what was in store either for the idea or for those who advocated a storage and power project on the river.

The initial plan included a dam on the lower river that would protect the rich Imperial Valley from flood and produce possibly 100,000 horsepower of electricity for Southern California.

The first stories outlining these opportunities appeared in the Hearst Los Angeles papers 10 years ago. Gradually the conception expanded, due largely to the tremendous growth of Los Angeles and the Southwest generally. By 1921 there had been whipped into shape a fairly definite idea about what was to be done, based on the able studies of the Lower Colorado carried out under the direction of Arthur P. Davis, head of the reclamation service.

Early in 1922 Representative Phil D. Swing of the Eleventh California district, which included Imperial Valley, introduced a bill in Congress providing for the construction of a high dam at or near Boulder Canyon.

That started the fight, officially.

The Hearst papers are very happy to record that they were in the fight THEN, and, in fact, had been going three years before that time.

In the following year the campaign took on a new responsibility and aspect when extraordinary growth in Los Angeles and other Southern California cities made domestic water an issue. William Mulholland, builder of the great Los Angeles aqueduct, found that it was both necessary and practicable to bring additional water from the Colorado. That gave another reason for building the dam.

But from the beginning there was one "trouble" about the project: Power would be generated. It's perfectly all right to store up water for household use, and for irrigation, and to protect lives and property against floods; but it isn't all right to run that water over a dam through turbines and create electric power.

Power has confused the issue. It is because of the power feature that there has been misrepresentation, confusion, tremendous expenditures by the private electric interests. It is because of power that the project has been assailed from every possible angle. Power explains the nationwide propaganda in the public schools, women's clubs, farmers' and business men's associations.

And if was the misinformation, the subtleties, the massed attacks, the wealth and strength of Power that these newspapers had to meet in the final stages of this fight.

Do not think that the newspaper stories and editorials tell the whole story. The nature and obligations of the contest made it necessary to work every angle that promised results.

Every time, therefore, that anything developed that strengthened the argument for Boulder Dam—engineer's report, resolutions by some representative body, or any other favorable circumstance—the Hearst papers laid this report, resolution or whatever it may have been, before Congress and officials in Washington promptly and in the most convenient and telling form that human energy and ingenuity could contrive.

During the years of this contest, which at times has assumed such heroic proportions, these newspapers have sent out literally hundreds of tons of material—maps, letters, documents, reports, etc.

It was all done for the good of the cause, and that cause the good of the people. There has been no other thought but that here was something to be done which the people through their Government had a right to have done.

It was very simple, but the Power Trust made it intricate. The Power Trust spent millions trying to make the American people believe that Boulder Dam is a great power project designed to build up the city of Los Angeles at the expense of the Government—that is, at the people's expense.

It has been a monumental work on the part of the Hearst papers—which have carried the burden of the fight—to convince the people and, through them, the Congress, that there has been no such motive. The mainspring of the tremendous effort has been to give the region of the Southwest its rights and to permit it to come into its inheritance of a great river and all that it may afford, whether of protection from flood, irrigation for arid lands, water for the cities, or power for industries.

There have been many able, valiant and public-spirited warriors in this great conflict. The Hearst papers think it is an honor to have been able to direct a national campaign of education and advocacy to back them up and, sometimes, to show them the way.
